Vodka and Whisky.
Four Magic Words.
Ideas Work Rapidly.
62 and a Star.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

SENATOR TIDINGS, of Maryland, back from Russia, says "Vodka as a drink excels both Scotch and gin." It might do that easily and still be bad.

The best fact about vodka is that it is 60 per cent water, only 40 per cent alcohol. Count Witte, who established a government monopoly of vodka, said it brought in just enough money to pay the Czar's army.

The Czar abolished vodka for a while, gave the Russian people a chance to think, and they abolished him.

MR. SLEMP, intelligent student of politics, thinks President Coolidge will run again because, says he, "The President might have said, 'I won't run' instead of saying, 'I do not choose to run.'"

Mr. Slemp misunderstands the four magic words, "I do not choose."

"Had the President said, "I won't run," his enemies might foolishly have said, "You are AFRAID to run, the third term bogie worries you, or you think you might not get the nomination."

President Coolidge expressed his mind exactly when he said, "I do not choose to run." In those words he said to anybody that can read, "I could be nominated, I could be ELECTED; everybody not a fool knows it, and everybody not a fool knows that there is no question of a third term, since I have been ELECTED President only ONCE. The excellent third-term rule is based on the theory that a man should not use the presidency to get for himself REPEATED ELECTIONS.

"I could be NOMINATED and elected by a plurality bigger than the seven millions of last time, but I do not CHOOSE to run."

MONEY plus interest makes money. Indians sold New York City for $49 to Dutchmen. Had they placed that sum at 6 per cent compounded on the day they sold the land, their heirs would have more money now than New York City is worth.

Chauncey Depew, past 90 years, tells how he put $100 in the savings bank 66 years ago, and now has $1,100 in the bank.

BUT interest, while sure, is slow. A good idea makes money quickly.

John E. Andrus, called the "strap-hanger millionaire" because he hangs to street car straps when he might ride in his automobile, bought one share of Singer Sewing Machine stock for a few dollars in 1864. Having bought a good thing, he knew enough to keep it. That share has paid him thus far $54,000.

IT WAS not Mr. Andrus' thrift that made the money, but THE IDEA of another man, putting the eye of the needle in the needle's point instead of the other end, thus making the sewing machine possible.

Be thrifty, save, let interest work for you, by all means. But use your brain for QUICK results.

MRS. BINA ABRAMOWITZ, a Jewish actress, with six children and nine grandchildren, will be the star in a new play, "Greenberg's Daughter." That Mrs. Abramowitz is 62 years old will interest everybody, but the fact need not surprise any one.

Sarah Bernhardt, another Jewish actress, when 62, was at the height of her power. Women become old at 50, not because their minds are less active than the minds of men, but because at 50 their children are gone, or no longer need them, and the world gives them nothing worth while to do.

Wasted power in waterfalls is as nothing compared with waste of power in the brains of women past middle age, without occupation to give their intelligence full play.

WILLIAM B. LEEDS, young American with a great deal of money, sets a good example. He took out a license as air pilot, flying 35 minutes under inspection to prove his ability. Mr. Leeds, with no particular flying plans in mind, says, "We shall all have to learn flying sooner or later."

MR. LEEDS' example is recommended to all rich young gentlemen. If each young sportsman owned a high speed pursuit plane and knew how to manage it, this country would be safer.

Picture above was snapped at Jack Dempsey's training quarters at the Lincoln Fields race track, Chicago, Saturday, when Tex Rickard, promoter of Dempsey's fight to regain his title from Gene Tunney, paid the former champion and his wife a visit, accompanied by Mrs. Maxine Rickard and their baby daughter. Yesterday, the Rickard family descended on Tunney's camp and Gene also went through the solemn duty of posing for the photographers with the heiress to the Rickard hoorah and millions in his arms.

MORE PUPILS GO ON STRIKE

THE Peach WALL STREET CLOSE

EXTEND SCHOOL STRIKE

The sympathy strike of school children in the coal districts in outlying sections of Allegheny county has spread from Gallatin, where about 135 pupils were reported out last week, to Axelton, across the river from Monongahela City, where half of the 240 boys and girls enrolled in public school classes refused to attend today's sessions with sons and daughters of non-union miners.

The situation at Gallatin was reported quiet by members of the Sunnyside grade school board, but it is known that a committee of parents visited the school this morning and suggested that their children be separated from the children of non-union miners. This could not be done, it was pointed out, and as soon as the non-union children appeared for classes, the others walked out.

The young strikers both at Axelton and Gallatin picketed the schools this morning, according to residents of the district, and children of farmers and business men were urged to join the sympathy strike. A number of parents, fearing their children

Held As Bigamist

HELD FOR COURT

Roland Payne, 24, Braddock, held for court on charges of bigamy and abandoning a minor by Magistrate A. D. Brandon, Morals Court, after wife No. 2 testified against him.

BRINGS CHARGES

Charging her husband had another wife at the time he married her, Mrs. Roland Payne, 22, 6334 Aurelia street, caused his arrest when he failed to support her and their infant boy.

LICKED, BLAMES RUTH

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The most widely known ball player in America was hailed into court today on a "John Doe" warrant alleging assault.

George Herman "Babe" Ruth, slugging Yankee outfielder, was the "John Doe" meant. When he heard the story of the assault "Babe" expressed pity for the victim, Bernard Neimeyer, and produced witnesses who said that Ruth was in Garfield, N. J., at the time the assault is alleged to have occured on Broadway here.

Neimeyer told the court that on July 4, shortly after he had been released from hospital after being treated for a fracture of the spine, he was walking along Upper Broadway. Two women passed him, he said, but he paid no attention to them.

In their wake came a man, identified in court by Neimeyer as Ruth, who brushed against him and called to the women, asking them if Nei-

TAXPAYER MUZZLED AT AUDIT

An irate "taxpayer" today strenuously objected to County Controller C. C. McGovern's "running the whole show" in the public audit of the county's expennitures and demanded "his rights" to question a witness in the private rontracting" case of State Senator Edward E. Pfischner, for whom the county built driveway curbs at his Millvale home. Mr. "Taxpayer" was told to sit down.

Joseph Steuler, of the Bank of Millvale, had just completed testifying that he learned of the county's part in the work through a "certain man," and then investigated for himself. Representative Joseph C. Marcus, representing Pfischner, was unsuccessful in his efforts to learn the identity of the informer.

Meanwhile Attorney John O. Wicks, trustee for the funds used to purchase the county park property, entered and discussed with McGovern many of the records wanted by the Controller. This conference over, McGovern called Felix Ferrari, foreman of the gang that did the Pfischner job. Before Ferrari could testify, the "taxpayer" jumped to his feet and demanded that he be allowed to ask Steuler who the "certain man" was. The "taxpayer" declared he was John Holley, of Bellevue, and that it was only right

THE WEATHER.

Fair tonight and probably Tuesday; somewhat warmer Tuesday.

Find Ruth and Judd Sane

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray have been found sane in examinations conducted at Sing Sing by the State Lunacy Commission.

Prison attaches said that Mrs. Snyder received members of the lunacy commission very cordially, and that she impressed them as realizing "what her situation is all about." The alienists found Gray's mind unchanged since they last visited him.

Gray, condemned to death with Mrs. Snyder for the "sashweight" murder of the woman's husband, Albert W. Snyder, received his first visitors in a month yesterday. His mother, Mrs. Margaret Gray; his sister, Mrs. H. E. Logan, and Mr. Logan discussed with him his appeal from the death sentence.

Gray has expressed himself mystified by the failure of his friend, Haddon Gray, to visit him, since permission was accorded him by a Supreme Court order. Haddon Gray unwittingly had helped Judd to prepare his "alibi" in Syracuse following the Snyder murder.

ACCIDENTS FATAL TO TWO WOMEN

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Rosalie Calyez, 87, a widow, was killed instantly when she was struck by a work train on the Baltimore and Ohio tracks at Hooversville.

QUAKERS FACE HILL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

When the Pirates assembled this morning at their clubhouse, they felt like cheering over the results yesterday, but the cheers were given with their fingers crossed, to some extent. True it was that the Giants had been knocked off again, thus enhancing the position of the Buccos as far as the runners-up were concerned, but there were other angles to ponder.

The Cardinal threat increased while the Pirates were idle. By winning again the Redbirds went into a deadlock for second place.

So there are two runners-up today and both are within two games of the top. Moreover, the Cubs are only

EAST ROCHESTER MAN HIT BY TRAIN, DIES

ROCHESTER, Pa., Sept. 12.—Robert McCullough, 77, of East Rochester, was struck by a train and instantly killed at the Case street crossing of the Fort Wayne division, Pennsylvania Railroad, early today.

WORLD FLIERS FORCED DOWN BY FOG

TOKIO, Sept. 12.—Forced to land at the Omura Air Field, near Saseho Kyushu, after flying from Shanghai, the Pride of Detroit, piloted by William Brock and Edward F. Schlee, attempted to reach Tokio today, but was compelled to return to Omura when the round-the-world fliers encountered a heavy fog and high winds.

During the flight from Shanghai, the two airmen also encountered a soupy fog. This, coupled with the fact that the aviators had a poor grade of gasoline, caused them to abandon their plans of a non-stop flight to Tokio.

After the flight from Shanghai, the fliers inspected their plane at Omura Field and again took to the air in an effort to reach this city. They were forced to return, however, when the fogs made it inadvisable to continue.

Brock and Schlee today asserted

College Graduate Held As Firebug

Harold Monheimer, 30, college graduate and traveling salesman, of Chicago, suspected of setting fire to more than half a dozen Western Pennsylvania hotels, is under arrest by the State Police at Greensburg, who trailed him more than six months. The man, declared to be suffering from pyromania, was arrested in the Webster Hall Hotel here Saturday night, and, after questioning at the Greensburg barracks today, State Police said an information charging arson would be made before Justice of the Peace Joseph A. Walton, of Westmoreland county.

Proprietors and managers of hotels where Monheimer is suspected of starting incendiary fires were summoned to the state police headquarters today to identify the man and to give information in the pre-

MINERS CHARGE POLICE HIRED TO STIR TROUBLE

DAUGHTERS' MOVIE SUCCESSES -:- SPLIT COSTELLOS -:- MARRIED FOR 25 YEARS

SEPARATE PARENTS
Dolores Costello's career and that of her sister ended their parents' 25 years of marriage.

SIDE TOGETHER

ALONE IN FIGHT
Costello said in court that he had tried to protect his daughters from pitfalls in the movie game, but his wife interfered.

SUCCESS
Dolores has scored a great success in the movies. Here she is shown in a recent role.

"MAKES MARK"
Helene, too, made her mark in the film world at the price of her father's happiness, he said. Success has come, but family ties are broken now.

SAYS MINE POLICE STIR TROUBLE

Charges that coal and iron police, paid guards of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, were employed specifically to stir up trouble and violence at the company's mines so that it might be blamed on "these innocent miners," proved a high spot in the presentation of the answer of Mine Workers to injunction proceedings against them in Federal Court today.

The brush of denunciation was wielded by Attorney William H. Coleman, Pittsburgh representative at the miners' counsel table. For more than two hours bitter arraignment was hurled at corporation tactics and methods as Coleman read from a bulky file of affidavits submitted previously by the corporation.

Coleman did not touch on the matters of Federal court jurisdiction in the case, the main point at issue, leaving this to T. C. Townsend, of Charleston, W. Va., who spoke briefly when court convened, concluding his lengthy argument of Saturday.

As soon as Coleman finished, Attorney W. E. Stanley, of Cleveland, began the plaintiff rebuttal with an attack on defense affidavits. The occupancy of company houses by striking miners was made a paramount point in his argument. The defense has charged that the present injunction proceedings are really a new effort of the corporation to oust these miners, which they have been unable to accomplish in state courts.

Stanley declared the affidavits showed three things clearly:

1—The ruthless activities of union pickets and strike sympathizers.

2—The wanton destruction of property of enormous value by strikers and sympathizers.

3—The failure of the union to penalize miners convicted of outrages in connection with the strike.

The second point was construed to have been directed toward the huge monetary damages sought by the corporation from the union as part of the present suit.

Most of the morning session was occupied with the completion of the mine workers' case by the presentation of a bulky pile of affidavits contradicting other affidavits offered previously by the plaintiff. In many cases the stories of violence and property damage sworn to in plaintiff's affidavits were flatly denied in the defense affidavits.

Deposits of $100,000 were made by officials of the United Mine Workers of America in the Labor Bank and Trust Company at Indianapolis during the past summer to finance the coal strike in the Pittsburgh district, it was revealed this afternoon in a series of subpoenaed telegrams between William Hargest, financial representative of the union here, and Indianapolis headquarters, which were read into the records of the injunction proceedings.

Correspondence was read to prove that the international organization of the mine workers was actively interested in the strike in the Pittsburgh district and had revamped its forces here to direct strike activities effectively. Correspondence with the National Surety Company, which furnished bonds for striking miners in company litigations against them, were offered next. A part of the present proceedings is directed against the surety company to prevent them from remaining on these bonds or writing new ones.

Beauty in Hard Luck; No Pageant Clothes, Fired for Popularity

By Universal Service.

JERSEY CITY, Sept. 12.—Being a beauty has brought only grief to Miss Eunice Geiser.

In 1926 she was chosen "Miss Rockaway" and this year "Miss Jersey City."

"But I was not able to go to the Atlantic City pageant either year," she said, "because I had no pretty clothes.

"I had a good job at the telephone company, but so many people called me up congratulating me for being named "Miss Jersey City" that I lost my job.

"But I have a new job now and I'll tell no one where it is."

would be molested, kept them at home.

Throughout the district, the children played about the streets all day, the occasion being considered by them an extended holiday. They must make up the school work they are missing, however, according to officials. John S. Cowan is supervising principal at the Sunnyside school.

C. E. Dickey, superintendent of county schools, said he had received no word from the district this morning and he was unaware of the situation at Axelton.

"We do not want to deal too harshly with these children, nor their parents," declared Mr. Dickey. "Of course, they are breaking the law by staying away from school and if they continue to refuse to attend classes we shall be forced to serve the parents with summonses and they will be fined from $2.50 to $5 for the first offense."

A similar situation existed last week at the Franklin School at Lock No. 3, it was revealed this morning. The children of union miners refused to attend classes with the nonunion boys and girls, but after two or three days, matters were adjusted satisfactorily and the school is functioning normally.

ROCKVIEW FUGITIVES GET ADDED SENTENCES

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 12.—A futile effort to escape from the Western Penitentiary, Rockview, cost two prisoners a long added "stretch" today when they appeared beforeJudge James C. Furst charged with jailbreaking. Lester Sinclair, of Chester county, was sentenced an added term of from two and a half to five years upon expiration of his present term and Harry Flory, of Monroe county, from 5 to 10 years. They escaped last Thursday and were captured Friday.

DORIS FIGHTS DIVORCE

DORIS MERCER KRESGE
A motion to show cause why Sebastian Kresge, millionaire head of chain stores, should not be restrained from prosecuting a suit for divorce in Detroit, was to be hear in the Supreme Court today. Nathan Burkan, attorney for Mrs. Kresge, the former Doris Mercer of Pittsburgh, was to contend that Kresge cannot legally prosecute his divorce suit in Michigan because he is a resident of New York state. Max D. Steuer was to appear for the millionaire.

meyer had spoken to them. Nelmeyer said the women replied that he had not spoken to them, but Ruth "struck me a terrible blow in the eye with his left fist anyway."

"I'm partially blind in one eye," Nelmeyer said, "and I pleaded with him not to strike me again. Then I asked him why he had struck me."

"'Why did you speak to my wife?'" Nelmeyer quoted Ruth as saying.

POLICE REFUSE AID

A crowd had gathered by this time, Nelmeyer said. He heard a chauffeur shout "that's 'Babe Ruth.'" Nelmeyer said he had never seen Ruth, but had read of him and knew who he was. Nelmeyer related how he beseeched the crowd to "grab" Ruth and of how no one responded. Then a traffic officer intervented.

"The traffic cop told me to get the patrolman on that beat," Nelmeyer recounted. "I left him and followed the man and the two women to where they were getting into a taxi. I asked the traffic cop to arrest the man, but he told me to get a summons."

When the man and two women had speeded away in the taxi, Nelmeyer said, a patrolman shooed the crowd away and he went to a station to make complaint. After much difficulty, Nelmeyer said, he got a "John Doe" summons which he served on Ruth at the Yankee Stadium July 29. Nelmeyer said he was "positive" the man was Ruth.

SORRY, BABE SAYS

Ruth, dressed in a neat blue suit, stood in the court as Nelmeyer pointed him out.

Repeating that he was sorry for Nelmeyer, Ruth declared that he was "much surprised" at the charge. The home run manufacturer had with him two witnesses who corroborated his statement that he was in Garfield at the time of the alleged assault.

After hearing the story of Nelmeyer, an interior decorator, and of Ruth, Magistrate Stern continued the case until Friday to permit Nelmeyer to obtain witnesses to corroborate his story.

M'Keesport Boy Nabbed As Firebug

"To see the fire engines go," the police say, Johnny Palko, 10, of 615 Jerome avenue, McKeesport, set fire to the home of Mrs. Mary Kozac, 616 Jerome avenue, McKeesport, yesterday. A week ago the boy fired a billboard, it is alleged.

The boy was arrested yesterday after persons who had seen the fire being started were interviewed by police. The damage amounted to several hundred dollars. Fire Chief M. J. Quinn said there have been a number of small incendiary fires in McKeesport recently.

they were uncertain when the flight would be resumed.

Despite the numerous cablegrams received from the United States asking that they abandon their proposed flight across the Pacific, the two airmen, according to a wire sent to their representative here, appear determined to attempt the dangerous ocean hop.

The men flying the Pride of Detroit, according to advices received by their representative, intend to install a new Wright motor in the plane when they arrive here and then will continue the flight to Midway, thence to Honolulu and to San Francisco. Final decision on the matter, however, will not be made until the airmen reach here.

INJURED IN RACE, KILLED ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

SEA ISLE CITY, N. J., Sept. 12.—Relentless fate dogged John Ruddcrow, 25. Injured in a motorcycle race at Sea Isle City, he was being taken to the Atlantic City Hospital in a motorcycle sidecar when the sidecar was swiped by an automobile owned and driven by Gifford Lawrence, of Marcus Hook, Pa. Ruddcrow was instantly killed.

LIQUOR FOR FIGHT IS SEIZED

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—(U.P.)—While the tanker Bulko lay tied up at one of the isolated Greenwich Point piers today under heavy guard, federal prohibition authorities sought to determine who brought the vessel into this port with a cargo of liquor valued at $2,000,000.

On the pier stood a string of box cars from the Pennsylvania Railroad. They had been ordered for service early Sunday morning to handle a shipment of "vegetables."

But prohibition agents, their suspicions aroused at such a large shipment of "vegetables" and the time at which it was to have been handled, appeared on the scene and found the vessel heavily laden with barrels and cases of rye, Scotch and other brands of liquor.

Authorities had some intimation that it was headed for the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago.

MALONE FAINTS AT WORK

City Councilman James F. Malone fainted this morning in the Republican organization headquarters in Hotel Henry. Dr. Daniel E. Sable, city surgeon, was summoned and, after administering restoratives, announced that Mr. Malone had suffered no ill effects.

After a brief rest, Mr. Malone returned to his work in the headquarters as chairman of the Republican campaign committee.

ROMANCE ENDS HERE

BETTY OLSEN
Two weeks in Pittsburgh, Betty Olsen and Agnes Wiess, 20-year-old Milwaukee girls, told a story of shattered romance in Morals Court following their arrest in Centennial way. Their story resulted in the holding of their "boy friends," James Bruno and Joseph Ventice, each 19, of Milwaukee. The girls testified they were brought to Pittsburgh from their homes by the boys. They were remanded to the Home of the Good Shepherd to be held as material witnesses against the boys.

DIES AT "DEATH WISH" OF MOVIE MOTHER

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—An altercation between Miss Carol Gilbert, who plays "mother" parts on the stage and screen, and her father, Charles Mortimer Gilbert, over the cooking of a plate of beans, followed by a "death wish" by the daughter, was climaxed here last night by the sudden death of the 80-year-old man.

Miss Gilbert told the police that in the argument her father struck her in the face with his cane.

"I wish you were dead," Miss Gilbert said she exclaimed. The aged man, she said, clutched his heart and fell to the floor. Miss Gilbert was hysterical when the police arrived. She was not held.

Physicians were of the opinion that death was due to a stroke of apoplexy. An autopsy has been ordered.

nothing should be hidden from the public.

Ferrari testified that all materials were on hand when he took over the Pfischner job and that he was paid by Pfischner. The work took seven days, he said. His testimony, in the main, was corroborated by William Dando, Adam Liebold, Phillip Withus, Walter Cricks, C. Hingeisen, W. G. Coles and Samuel L. Dillon, all county employes who worked on the Pfischner job.

James Routley, assistant chief clerk to the Commissioners, who was supposed to bring all the canceled checks and records of the "private payroll" handled by himself, told McGovern that unless the records were changed to show that he did not have over $1,500,000 deposited in the bank in his own name, he would refuse to help the Controller's men or to testify. The money, he said, had always been banked under "Allegheny County Road Maintenance."

paration of charges against him. It is probable that informations will be made in each county where the hotel fires occurred.

Among the hotels in which incendiary fires were discovered within the last six months, and which are charged against Monheimer are: Penn-Albert, Greensburg; Jamison, Blairsville; George Washington, Washington, Pa.; Fort Jackson, Waynesburg; New Pantall, Punxsutawney; Hotel Stein, Kittanning, and the Howard, New Kensington.

According to the state police Monheimer admitted his guilt in several of the fires. He is described as a man of superior education and is employed by a reputable Chicago firm. It is apparent, the police said, that he is suffering from pyromania, and he could assign no reason for his acts beyond the satisfaction of his desire to behold destruction by flames.

In no instance did serious results follow the fires alleged to have been started by Monheimer. The blaze in the Fort Jackson Hotel, Waynesburg, occurred on August 20. Fire was discovered in a guest room across the hall from a room occupied by Monheimer. The Fort Jackson is a fireproof building and the fire was extinguished with little damage. It was stated that no effort had been made to start a fire in Webster Hall, where Monheimer was arrested by the state police and a representative of the fire marshal's office soon after his arrival there.

FROM BLACK HILLS TO WHITE HOUSE

President Calvin Coolidge, with his wife and son John, has gone back to the formal White House after a long vacation in the informal Black Hills. He has had his annual "fling" at life out-of-doors, his fun at fishing; he has been honored by the cow-punchers of the colorful West; he has been made an Indian chief, and he has gone to church Sundays to a tiny wooden building to hear a 29-year-old pastor. Now, he goes back to the formalities of official Washington, to talk of disarmament, to reams of papers, Congress soon, and rounds of conferences. A good time has been had by all.

APPEAL WOODSIDE RULING

THE DAILY PICTORIAL — THE SUN TELEGRAPH — GENERAL NEWS SECTION

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1927

FOES TAKE FIGHT TO HIGHER COURT

An appeal from Judge Ambrose B. Reid's decision that he is without jurisdiction to prevent Robert G. Woodside's name from going on the Republican ballot was filed today in the Supreme Court. Attorney Frank C. McGirr filed the appeal.

Attorney McGirr also is expected to make application to advance the case before the court, which meets in Pittsburgh on September 26. The appeal means that McGirr wants the higher court to rule on his equity proceeding, dismissed at the cost of the complainants.

George E. Alter, representing the Republican organization, asked that it be dismissed, because as an equity proceeding he claimed, it had no standing in court. The judge ruled he was without authority to prevent any name from going on nomination papers and quoted the law. McGirr claims Woodside, a former sheriff, is not eligible to run for county controller until two years from January 4, 1926.

'Marry Again? Never!' —Stage Calls Lita

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin was visiting New York for the first time today, with matrimony set forever behind her and a vaudeville career under consideration.

"Marry again?" she exclaimed. "I have had enough to last me the rest of my life. Never again."

"Never is a long time," interposed Mrs. Lillian Spicer, mother of the girl who became the film comedian's bride at 18. "She is young yet, you must remember."

Mrs. Chaplin did not comment on a report that she had been booked for a vaudeville tour at $7,500 a week. She won a divorce settlement of $625,000.

Her two sons, Charles, Jr., and Sidney Earle, are with their grandparents in Los Angeles.

Fine Wedding Guests Carrying 5 Quarts

A sequel to a wedding reception with a funeral aspect was staged in Federal Court today when Judge R. M. Gibson fined Mrs. Minnie Fagadan, 301 South Winebiddle avenue, $10 and John Bordonaro, New Kensington, $20.

The reception was held in an East End hotel August 11, following the wedding of Mrs. Fagadan's daughter Bordonaro, with three quarts of liquor and two quarts of wine, was accompanying Mrs. Fagadan into the hotel when prohibition agents made the arrest.

Today they pleaded guilty to unlawful possession of liquor and were fined. Attorney Max Spann, counsel for the defendants, told the court that he was at the reception when the seizure was made. "It was more like a funeral than a wedding reception," said the attorney.

Mother Hit, Babe Dies At Birth

Death in a scene of violence claimed a baby three minutes after it was born at the home of Anthony Mosko, 32, of Mine No. 3, near Mollenauer, and Mosko today is being held in county jail.

Mrs. Mosko is in a serious condition resulting from being kicked and beaten before she fell beneath a table prior to the birth of the baby.

The quarrel that culminated in the tragedy, county detectives say, occurred when Mosko and William Novolis, 52, a boarder, quarreled as to whose duty it was to summon a physician to officiate at the visit of the stork. Mrs. Mosko was drawn into the argument by her husband, detectives say.

Novolis and Mosko were lodged in county jail on charges of assault and battery to await the outcome of Mrs. Mosko's injuries after an autopsy at the morgue revealed that the newly-born babe died from natural causes.

BOY DIES IN ICE BOX; SUSPECT PRANK AT PLAY

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Five-year-old William Weber is dead, having been smothered in an old icebox. While the boy was fighting for breath last night, his father stood a few feet away in the shed where the box stood, back of the Weber home. Authorities are investigating to learn whether the child had been locked in by playful children.

Quit Stressing Speed, Auto Makers Urged

Automobile manufacturers will be appealed to by the Better Traffic Committee of Pittsburgh to cease emphasizing the speed possibilities of automobiles.

The fact that automobile fatality increases of from 20 to 50 per cent have occurred during the first six months of this year may be laid partly to "speed" advertisements of automobile manufacturers, the Better Traffic committee believes.

"Power" and "safety" would be better points to emphasize in advertisements than to stress the fact that a machine will go 60, 70 or 80 miles an hour, the committee will point out to the advertisers. Suggesting that a machine will travel 70 miles an hour, an unlawful and dangerous speed for any public highway, is sure to tempt many drivers to test their machines on that basis, it is asserted.

BREAKS SHOULDER IN ELEVATOR SHAFT FALL

John Callahan, 34, of 1035 Walnut street, McKeesport, is in the McKeesport Hospital suffering from a fracture of the right shoulder resulting from a fall down an elevator shaft in the Tube City brewery last night.

PLAN DRY SHIFT IN CONNECTICUT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Prohibition Commissioner Doran announced today that Connecticut will be placed in the New England prohibition district instead of operating under the New York district. Frank T. Putney, deputy administrator at Hartford, will have charge of the state enforcement work with 11 agents.

Doran said better results could be obtained in the Nutmeg state by placing it in the New England group and that Administrator Campbell in charge of the Southern and Eastern judicial districts of New York has sufficient work without operating in Connecticut.

OHIO FARMER GETS LIFE TERM IN FEUD MURDER

WOODSFIELD, O., Sept. 12.—Clinton E. Roe, 32, Monroe county farmer, today was sentenced to life imprisonment in the state penitentiary by Judge Richener. He was found guilty of first degree murder Saturday for the death of Dent Webb, neighbor. A feud raged between the two families half a century. Roe is the first person to be given a life sentence in Monroe county.

3 Negroes Shot to Death

Three Negroes are dead, another is sought, and police are holding eight others as the result of three shootings in the Pittsburgh district yesterday.

Robert H. Johnson, 42, of 242 Swope street, was shot in the head, dying almost instantly in a room at the Swope street address. The body was found by police in a room occupied by Hugo Auston, 28, Negro, and Corey Johnson, 27, Negro. Police arrested Auston and Johnson and five other Negroes.

Lawrence Payne, 34, Negro, of 521 Carey way, Homestead, died in Homestead Hospital early today of gun shot wounds said to have been suffered while he was examining a revolver owned by Arne Hall, Negro, 441 Third avenue, Homestead. Hall is being held for the coroner.

Police are seeking Walter Johnson, 30, Negro miner of Hou: No. 193, Indianola, in the death of Richard Smith, 45, of 2911 Penn avenue, who was shot early yesterday over a 50-cent bet in a crap game in the Indianola house. Smith died almost instantly.

DESERTER OF CHILDREN IS ORDERED EXTRADITED

Judge Joseph M. Swearingen shortly after the opening of Common Pleas Court today, signed an order directing that Raymond Ross, be turned over to the New York state authorities, on extradition papers.

Ross is accused of having deserted his five children. He was arrested in Noblestown last week and the New York authorities have been here for several days, waiting for the court to act. M. L. Thompson having fought extradition. It appears that Ross first waived extradition and then revoked it.

HITTING 60 AN HOUR COSTS MOTORIST $25

Sixty miles an hour through the streets of Homestead was the speed with which William Dixon, 29, a Negro, of Munhall, drove his car, according to testimony given before the Homestead burgess today. Dixon was ordered to pay a fine of $25 on a charge of disorderly conduct and was held on several charges of violating the automobile laws. In his wild race the Negro's car struck a machine driven by Miss Rose Schwartz, of 228 Ninth avenue, Munhall. Miss Schwartz was slightly hurt.

CAPTURE ALLEGED MILLVALE TERRORIST

After two weeks of liberty in the hills about Millvale, during which time he is said to have hurled spikes through several windows and terrorized residents of the district, John Ffum, 44, a former resident of the borough, is in the county home at Woodville today. He was arrested Saturday while watching trains at the Etna station of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

"THE CAT," ELUSIVE PURSE-SNATCHER, CAPTURED

"THE CAT"

William E. Mitchell, "The Cat," long sought by police, has been captured at last in Chicago, where, police say, he has committed and confessed to several hundred robberies. He preyed only upon women and by day was a respected clerk.

STOLE FOR HER

Mrs. Mitchell, also arrested and held by police. He stole to give her what she wanted, Mitchell has confessed, according to police. He was sought by police squads and in city-wide drives at the places where "The Cat" sprang upon women by night.

Brandon Would Deport Aliens Convicted On Rum Charges

Deportation of alien liquor law violators and the enactment of state legislation which will give police magistrates the power to sentence minor liquor law violators to 30 or 60-day sentences to the workhouse, or impose maximum fines of $300, was advocated by Magistrate A. D. Brandon of Morals Court in an address in Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal Church last night. If he had the power to impose more severe punishment on liquor law violators, he could settle 90 per cent of the domestic relations cases which come before him, Magistrate Brandon said.

COOLIDGE, BACK AT DESK, TACKLES BIG ISSUES

EXTRA SESSION, FLOOD ACTION HEAD LIST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12—Refreshed by his three months' residence in the Black Hills of South Dakota, President Coolidge was at his desk today to begin consideration of important matters that had sidetracked public business here with government and international leaders.

Showing no sign of fatigue after the two days in the saddle and 1,800 miles by train which he completed last night, Mr. Coolidge, face well tanned by the sun of the Northwest, was prepared for his busy program of the day.

In a series of conferences with Cabinet officials and other government leaders, the President will take up the question of calling an extra session of Congress to deal with flood relief and other matters. Secretary Hoover, who has been in charge of flood relief activities in the Mississippi valley, is expected to confer with the President on the flood situation.

ARREST THREE IN CUTTINGS

Three men are under arrest following investigation of two cutting affrays in the Pittsburgh district.

During a fight in the Thompson Run section near Duquesne, early today, Frank Lakasanic, 26, a resident of the camp, is said to have been cut in the face with a knife. Lakasanic was treated at Homestead Hospital for cuts on the face and left arm. He told police he was attacked by Mickey Mikesport, Homestead Hospital. Later Mikesport was captured by Motorcycle Officer M. H. Shoemaker.

Joseph Bradden, 25, of Agnes street, Wilkinsburg, was treated at Braddock General Hospital for cuts on the face and left arm. He told police he was attacked by Frank Bridge, Monongahela avenue, Jack Mele, 23, and Joseph Bridge, 29, of Miller street for the next few weeks. Both girls' parents are being held.

PLAYIN' THE ORGAN

PRACTICES HARMONICA

Between paper sales, George Sarkis started to Charleston while Marcon Harvey played the mouth-organ on a downtown street corner. They are warming up for Borrah Minevitch's harmonica contest at Loew's Penn Theater this week.

Harmonicists Tune Up For Contest

"Yo do de o do—Black Bottom—Whee! Bang!"

Don't call the police if you hear these weird and mournful sounds emitting from cellars, back yards or garret windows, for it is only some of Pittsburgh's many harmonica players tuning up for the Sun-Telegraph harmonica contest that may earn some boy in this city a position with Borrah Minevitch, who comes with his band of former newsboys, bootblacks and street gamins to the Loew's and United Artists' Penn Theater starting Monday.

This band, as we already have told you, has created more enthusiasm than any musical organization on the stage today. It is composed of boys from the various cities where Borrah has appeared, and it is his desire to find some boy from this city to represent Pittsburgh in this unique organization.

The harmonica as played by this band is no longer the toy that it was supposed to be, but an instrument capable of producing fine music. This will be proved to music lovers of this city next week, when this young group of boys without knowledge of music will play everything from the works of the old masters to that of present-day jazz.

Minevitch himself will play "Rhapsody in Blue," a classic of modern music, and without any accompaniment. That it can be mastered when many musical organizations have failed, he proves. All you must do is to fill in the accompanying blank and mail it to the Contest Editor of The Sun-Telegraph.

Please enter me in the Borrah Minevitch Sun-Telegraph Harmonica Contest to be held at Loew's New Penn Theater.

"Making Pittsburgh Smokeless"

How charming in simple dignity is this new lavatory design!

The "Pemberton" is suggested to those who wish to achieve dignity through simplicity in the bathroom ensemble.

In its straight-line beauty, "Standard" designers have attained impressive simplicity without severity. The design and wide spacing of the faucets are entirely in harmony with the lines of the lavatory.

The spacious top, 36 x 20 inches, offers ample room for toilet articles and shaving things. The tapered legs permit the dressing bench to be drawn close with comfortable knee-room.

Of massive proportions, the "Pemberton" is modeled and fired in one piece of genuine vitreous china. The commodious bowl, 17 x 12 inches, converges into the top without seam or break. The faucets are wrought of metal in hand-hammered or plain-surfaced designs. The legs are china and metal with crystal feet.

Come in to see the "Pemberton." Also, the "Templeton," a new dressing-table lavatory. The trademark "Standard" is impressed in every fixture. Booklet, with color illustrations, mailed on request.

PLAN OF FERRY STREET SPAN PREPARED

To give a better idea of how the proposed Ferry street bridge and tunnels will function in the matter of relieving traffic congestion in the downtown district, an artist's sketch of the project has been prepared by the county department of public works. The work has been done to facilitate study of the proposed improvement.

The span is a K-brace high-level structure passing over the Monongahela at an elevation of 70 feet. The downtown approach is shown sloping to the Boulevard of the Allies, where an under-pass arrangement prevents undue congestion. By this system, traffic from the bridge can cross or turn into the boulevard while traffic passes under Ferry street.

On the other side of the river a ram's horn ramp curves in two directions at a slight grade from the approach to West Carson street. The southern approach continues over railroad and street car tracks into the hillside at a point approximately 275 feet east of the P. & W. Va. Railroad bridge, where it connects with the proposed tubes.

The project's total cost is estimated at $12,000,000. In view of the arrangement under which the former mayor, William A. Magee, turned over the city's bridges to the county for a consideration of $1, the county would be asked to build this improvement, its supporters assert.

KILLS LIFE-LONG PAL OVER $2

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—A 68-year-old man is dead, and his life-long friend, 66 years old, confessed to the murder today as a result of an argument over $2.

The dead man is Albert Mock, of Claysburg, near here. John Ayers, also of Claysburg, is in the county jail charged with murder.

Ayers, in a statement to District Attorney Patterson, stated that he killed Mock after the latter had refused to give him $2 change of a $5 bill. Ayers said he sent Mock for a quart of liquor that costs $3. Mock returned without the money or liquor.

The accused man said he beat Mock to death with his fists. Deputy sheriffs said they found a blood-stained ax with hair clinging to it in the Ayers home where the slaying was committed. Ayers denied using the ax.

Kenneth Bucher, 12, of 322 Vista street, was bitten on the left ankle. Owners of the dogs were ordered to hold the animals for observation. Physicians treated both boys.

Sitting Judges Backed By Citizens League

Veiled suggestions that the nine sitting judges be returned to the Common Pleas bench, that Controller C. C. McGovern be given another term and that Joseph Francis urge E. Shields be elected clerk of courts [illegible] contained in the [illegible] meeting of the Citizens League made public today.

The bulletin contains no [illegible] should [illegible] advice as to whom [illegible] but "urges that the best [illegible] good records and are men of integrity and ability. Judge Gray is "a man of the highest character, eminently fitted for the position he holds." Judge McVicar is "a man of clean life, trained in the law and a good judge." John Martin is "a man of high ideals, judicial temperament and a capable judge," and Judge Moore is "a strong man of clean life, integrity and good civic ideals."

After referring in that way to the sitting judges the bulletin takes up three other candidates indorsed by the organization. E. C. Chalfant is said "although a good lawyer, has never been notably active in civic affairs." W. Hector Dithrich figured in the Legislature as a leader among the wets," and as an assistant United States District attorney "under a regime during which violators fared so easily that complaints were piled up in Washington." Elder W. Marshall is "a capable lawyer and respected citizen, but has never been active in public affairs." Other candidates for the bench were mentioned only by name.

Both McGovern and Robert G. Woodside, controller candidates, have been "soldiers of distinction" and the issue is not one of their personal integrity, said the bulletin.

Shields, the bulletin says, is "a capable man of unusually good record and unquestioned integrity," while Samuel J. Topin, the organization candidate, "never has been active in public affairs." As far as the councilmanic contest is concerned, the bulletin states that the records of Councilmen Garland, Winters, Allardice and Anderson are known to every observant citizen. Mrs. Anna M. Winner, reads the report, "is a woman of ability and public spirit and there are strong reasons for urging that the women should be represented in our City Council." John J. Ford and E. B. Brenner, two other aspirants, "are men of clean records."

The bulletin urges every citizen to vote, saying that only a small fraction of eligibles have voted in past election boards is urged.

MAY DRUG LETS CONTRACT FOR BUILDING

The contract for the new May Drug Company warehouse and office building has been let to H. Miller & Sons Co. of this city. The building, when completed, will cost approximately $500,000. The new structure will occupy 72 feet on Penn avenue, between Third and Fourth streets and extend back 136 feet. The building will be of steel and concrete construction, five stories high, with provision for adding additional floors. There will be about 60,000 square feet of floor space and the equipment will be of the most modern type, with refrigeration rooms for candies and other perishable merchandise. An up-to-date humidor that can accommodate a million cigars, automatic conveyors and compressed air-operated tubes to speed up delivery of orders and merchandise are in the plans.

The May Drug Company was founded in Pittsburgh about 25 years ago and has grown from a half a store room on Market street to one of the outstanding drug companies of the country. In their 14 stores more than 12,000,000 sales are transacted each year. The constant growth of their business has made this new building necessary, and with its completion a program of further expansion will be carried out. They employ upward of 300 people. Some of the employes have been with the company since the business was established. Many of them, including all managers and assistant managers, own stock in the company.

The new building will be ready for occupancy early next spring.

KISSES HUSBAND SHE JAILED

Mrs. H. E. Taylor, of Michigan City, Mich., may have stopped payment on a check, which resulted in her husband's arrest and detention in jail, but she forgot all that today when Taylor was released on a writ of habeas corpus. She planted a resounding kiss on each cheek, coincident with an enthusiastic hug.

Judge Joseph M. Sweeringen granted the writ after a Pittsburgh piano firm, at whose request Taylor was arrested, agreed not to press the charges.

Girl Out of Work for Months Today Begins to Play Role Of Lorelei in Anita Loos Tale

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 12.—She stood an inch or two over five feet. She was dressed in simple blue sport frock with small hat to match. Her eyes, hazel and rich in tones, bothered little with the casual faces around her. Therefore, it is to be expected that a year later she may be termed smooth. Lack of confidence is there.

A man sits at the table who knows something of our party. He looks at the girl and is deeply intrigued.

"Are you the Lorelei?"

She laughed and little stitched humor lines crinkled around her eyes.

"This is Ruth Taylor," he introduced.

"So this is Lorelei. She is younger appears older," he mused.

Yes, that was Lorelei, who is to be flapper vamp for Anita Loos' latest literary contribution, "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," today, directed by Mr. Sch[illing].

Ruth Taylor, who won the plum role of the second from an army of blonde aspirants, is 20 years old. She first saw the light of day in Grand Rapids, Mich., a fact she refused to own for its furniture. When she was leaving her home for Hollywood she went to Portland (Ore.) and there lived with a boarding [house].

Two years ago with her mother she came to Hollywood to be with her grandmother. Ruth had decided to take advantage of motion picture opportunity being her luck. She turned to all the industry. After several months of extra work she found Mack Sennett was looking for a new leading lady to play the lead in a Harry Langdon picture, the comedy which is to be produced [illegible]

Ruth applied for the job.

Mr. Sennett gave her an audience, and in doing so nearly scared the daylight out of the girl.

Some months ago to Hollywood went Lorelei. Ruth Taylor was among the countless number of blondes who yearned to portray the words. In the meantime her Sennett contract expired and was not renewed. Yet she hesitated trying for the "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" role she figured she stood no chance.

To bridge a long time lapse during the course of which a hundred of so blondes were screen tested for Lorelei, Ruth Taylor's test survived with four others. Fifteen Famous Players executives assembled one afternoon to select the fortunate one from the five. They unanimously selected Miss Taylor and with their selection went a five-year contract and assured success for this 20-year old girl who was just about ready to call quits and [illegible] the stage after three months in ability to land a job.

Hines Creates Dance In Tribute To Lindbergh

A dispatch comes from Hollywood with the news that Johnny Hines has contributed the latest tribute to Col. Charles Lindbergh in the form of the "Lindy Hop," an intricate new dance which the comedian created for the dinner dance tendered some celluloid air heroes in the action of his forthcoming First National picture, "Home Made." The report states that the new dance begins with an "off to Buffalo," goes into a wing step similar to George Primrose's old patroon wing, then a few steps similar to the Charleston, and finally finishing in a "whirl barrel roll" step.

Film That Won Chaplin First Fame To Be Made Again

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 12. It doesn't require a very good memory to remember "Tillie's Punctured Romance." The comedy was made long before movies were even in their infancy and catapulted Charlie Chaplin into fame with Marie Dressler.

A story that's good once is good forever. The producers think so and now after 12 years they are making it again. Marie Dressler will be seen once more and Chester Conklin will play the role which made Charlie.

Official timers of the A. A. A. on duty at the Atlantic City Speedway during the tests.

The AMOCO-GAS pit which fueled all three Auburns throughout the entire record-breaking test.

5,000 miles in 4,710 minutes
10,000 miles in 9,479 minutes
15,000 miles in 14,464 minutes

THREE Auburn stock models—two roadsters and a sedan—fully equipped—broke all records for stock cars in the 300 cu. in. class at distances from 5 to 15,000 miles.

The tests were made on the Atlantic City Speedway—officially timed and supervised by American Automobile Association officials.

Records fell on every lap—and AMOCO-GAS was used exclusively throughout the entire run. The speed was phenomenal—but still more important was the endurance shown. In less than ten days, these Auburns ran further than most owners drive in a couple of years.

A great triumph for the maker of the cars—and a convincing proof that for the unusual as well as the usual, there's no motor fuel to compare with AMOCO-GAS!

AUTO ACCIDENTS KILL ONE, HURT FOUR

Automobile accidents claimed the life of a Pittsburgh woman and resulted in injury to several persons yesterday.

Lena Wiecke, 24, of 708 Tripoli street, died in Westmoreland Hospital, Greensburg, after an automobile in which she was riding with her brother, Thomas Wiecke, overturned near Jeannette. Her brother suffered shock and bruises.

Anthony Kurzawa, 30, of 1012 Union street, Natrona Heights, is in Citizens General Hospital with two crushed legs as the result of a crash between an automobile in which he was riding and a street car on Ninth Street Bridge, New Kensington. Clarence Bolewicz, 30, of Spruce street, Natrona, the driver, suffered bruises.

While riding a tricycle near her home at 112 South Thirteenth street, Catherine Dorsey, 5, was struck by a machine driven by Anthony Briggins, 18, of 20 Usor way, and received minor bruises.

Gordon Appleby, 22, of 132 Trenton avenue, Wilkinsburg, is being held by police who claim he drove a stolen automobile past a traffic light at Craig and Bayard streets yesterday. He was captured after a chase of several blocks. The car is said to belong to J. R. Farrell, 418 Denniston avenue.

W. B. Goldston, Negro, of Moon Run, was captured after an hour's chase by McKees Rocks police after he is said to have run down William Kant, Negro, of McKees Rocks, and Frank Kane, of 413 Woodmont avenue, McKees Rocks. The men were only slightly hurt.

Clifford Ferree, 40, of Coal Valley, suffered a fracture of the skull when his automobile collided last night with a car driven by S. T. Black of 208 West Fifth avenue, McKeesport. Ferree was taken to the McKeesport Hospital. No arrests were made.

Police today are searching for a hit-and-run automobile driver who yesterday struck Joseph Anderson, 22, of 1503 Howard street, at Howard street and East North avenue. Anderson is in a serious condition in the Allegheny General Hospital, suffering from a fracture of the skull.

Before lapsing into unconsciousness he obtained the license number of the automobile.

TENT REVIVAL OVERFLOWED

The Second Presbyterian Church's evangelistic campaign opened last night in West Park with hundreds of persons unable to get inside the tent meeting place. It was necessary to raise the side-walls of the canvas chapel to permit the overflow crowd to stand several rows deep outside. The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, Second Church pastor, recently returned from a tour through the British Isles, was the speaker.

The audience was made up of men, women and children of all denominations and from all parts of the county. Dr. Shelton spoke on "Follow Thou Me," Christ's command to Matthew.

"Men whom their fellow men perhaps would not have looked to for important tasks were selected by Christ," he said. "Christ called Matthew from what we would be apt to consider an unlikely field. Being a Christian is the simplest and most profound course in the world. It means that a man gives up all that he knows is wrong and do s his best to live as Christ lived. A Scotland Yard detective was in Pittsburgh two years ago, sent to America by a wealthy Englishmen to find a missing daughter. One Sunday night he attended a tent meeting and I heard from him later. He had been converted. He wrote: 'Well, I did not find in America the unfortunate girl for whom I was looking, but I did find Jesus and I am happy!'"

A large chorus, directed by the Rev. A. L. Carter of Springfield, Mo., will sing every night of the revival, which will continue through Sunday, September 25, with the exception of Saturday nights.

MISS AMERICA GOES ON STAGE

By Universal Service.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 12.—Because the country at large is entitled to see the nation's most beautiful bathing girl, chosen at the annual beauty pageant here, Miss Delander, 16-year-old school girl, of Joliet, Ill., the new Miss America, will engage in theatrical work, both movie and stage, but under most careful supervision, it was announced here.

Thus far, however, she has not entered into any contracts, and in addition to her parents is being guided in the matter by Armand T. Nichols, director-general of the pageant.

Mr. and Mrs. Albion F. Delander, parents of Miss America, are here with her. Mr. Delander is the county clerk at Joliet.

"Our daughter attends school and is determined upon a career as an artist," said Mrs. Delander. "She is a splendid, normal girl, and we do not want to have her spoiled by unwise stage activities. We want to keep her fine and wholesome as she now is, even though it might mean forfeiting of large sums."

"However, because she possesses the title and because she must do honor to it and fulfill her duty to the country at large, my daughter will make some sort of stage appearance. In other words she cannot turn down all offers made her of contracts."

Metal Glimmers Smartly in Semi-Formal Afternoon Dresses

Madame who covets something different, will welcome the stunning model shown at the left, its rich Argentine blue and gold recalling the late tea-hour in Paris. An authentic replica after Bernard. The jaunty bolero of heavy crepe Jolly, poised over a skirt of exotic metal cloth.

Suzanne Talbot also sponsors metal fabrics, often combining them with velvet. We show several striking dresses following this style theme using the metal cloth for the blouse over skirts of velvet.

The Dress With Uneven Hemline Reaches the Highest Pinnacle of Fashion

Wherever fashion meets fashion this graceful vogue is omnipresent. Featured widely in the recent openings of Chanel, Patou, Premet, Agnes and Boulanger.

We would particularly call your attention to three of the lovely versions included in our collection. One has two long draperies on the sides of the skirt and achieves most interesting reversies of the fabric. Another model wraps snugly about the figure with a single wing-like drapery; this has a facing of white and a fascinating embroidery of white angora in wheat motifs. The third has a classic poise with draperies at the back as well as hemline.

Cobwebby Lace, the Universal Favorite, Returns to Lend Feminine Softness

Bohemian and Chantilly type laces, the warm tint of old ivory, have been adopted by many leading Parisian couturiers. Against the effective background of satin crepe we display them in vestees, following round or V necklines, flattering wrists or drooping from jabots. Doubly lovely when brightened by rhinestone buckles, buttons or pins.

Forbes

Why Europeans Dislike Us. Sacco Case Merely a Peg.

—By B. C. FORBES—

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH is not responsible for political statements in British publications. Mr. Forbes, however, is one of the most conservative, and his views are generally held by the rank and file of American business men.—Editor.

NOTHING has happened in years to do more damage to America than the evil spirit now rife in Europe against America. Not even the world war left behind it such a legacy of ill will. Almost every European country is now engaged in a campaign of vilification against the United States. Not only the press but the public platform, the pulpit, the theatre, the cinema, the radio, the schools, the universities, the clubs, the cafes, the trains, the streets, the shops, the factories, the offices, the homes—all are being utilized to spread the poison of anti-Americanism.

Every European country is now engaged in a campaign of vilification against the United States.

The evil spirit originated largely with professional writers who acted on the theory that the market was still in a weak technical position and contributed to a further reaction after the initial sustained advance. Leading commission houses, whose business it is to give all obtainable information and suggestions to their customers, also helped in depressing sentiment and liquidation.

United States Steel common after touching the year's high of 152 for the present move, sold down to 145½. Studebaker reacted from 83 to 66 and a number of other standard industrial and railroad issues. A temporary outbreak of strength developed in the oil shares when one block of 13,000 shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey changed hands at 40, but the buying movement quickly died down when selling pressure increased against the rest of the list.

Washington dispatches stating that President Coolidge had been advised by the majority leaders of the United States senate and House of Representatives that no extra session of Congress was needed attracted widespread interest in Wall street but failed to have any effect on the movement of securities prices.

PITTSBURGH SCREW & BOLT CONTINUES ADVANCE

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Price movements lacked uniformity in today's bond market, in which traders appeared disposed to buy individual liens for special reasons. High grade mortgages moved in a desultory manner, sustained near their year's peaks by continued easy money and a scarcity of offerings.

Erie D 4s, jumping 3¾ points to 123¾, featured the day's trading. These bonds will lose their convertible feature on October 1.

Reports of good earnings prospects for United States Rubber Company attracted considerable attention to the 5 per cent bonds of that concern, the price rising fractionally to around 94¼. Utility liens were again in demand, particularly International Telephone 4½s.

The foreign group was quiet and irregular. French bonds sagged a little in some instances, but there was moderate buying of South American obligations, notably Peruvian 7½s.

United States government securities were easy and transactions limited.

Prompt oversubscription was reported of the $5,000,000 City of Nuremburg gold 6s, offered this morning.

New York, Sept. 12.—(Associated Press)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

TIGER GIRL TRIES TO END "50 YEARS AN HOUR" LIFE

Sally's Shoulders

ENGROSSING DIFFERENT LIVELY DRAMATIC

By BEATRICE BURTON

John Nye Learns That Sally Has a Mind of Her Own; She Refuses a Check

What Has Gone Before

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family which consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MABEL, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for grouchy old MR. PEEVEY afternoons. In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is just across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Nye hires Millie as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her, making her presents and lending her his car, etc. But Millie confesses to Sally that, although she thinks Nye is a good-looking thing and that she would marry him for his money, she really prefers DAVIDSON. Millie is rushed to the hospital for an appendicitis operation, and Mrs. Jerome decides to telegraph for her husband, although Millie comes through it safely. John Nye, who is out of town, wires his office that he will be back the next day, and Sally tells the girl that she will do Millie's work in the mornings if John Nye wants her to.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

EVERY now and then she would look stealthily up at John Nye—at his fine, dark head, his jutting, arrogant nose, and the straightness of his broad back as he sat at his desk.

"How under the sun can Millie even look at a man like Davidson when she can have a man like this?" She put the question to herself a hundred times during that first week.

She wondered, too, how Millie could cold-bloodedly plan to marry John Nye for his money when he, himself, was so attractive. So much of a man.

Why any girl should be glad and proud to marry him if he didn't have one cent to rub up against another," she told herself.

Every day John Nye called at the hospital, and every night when Sally went there there were fresh flowers in the tall glass vases and baskets of dainties that the special nurse ate and passed around to the other nurses.

For Millie would eat nothing. She drank a little milk three times a day and refused all other food. She said she wasn't hungry, and Dr. Ambleside began to worry about her.

"She's not getting along as well as I'd hoped," he told Sally one night when he happened to come in while she was there. "She won't eat."

"I don't want to eat," Millie told him crossly. She didn't want to be propped up in bed, either, and she had refused steadfastly to see anybody but her mother and Sally. To them she talked very little. "I'm tired," was all she would say. "I want to be let alone."

Sally worried not only about her, but about the money that John Nye was paying out for the room and the bath and the special nurse and all the rest of it.

On Saturday noon John Nye came over and stood beside her desk. She could see him out of the corner of her eye, but she did not look up until he spoke to her. She had a piece of paper before her, and she was making a list of her expenses for the week on it—so much for groceries, so much for milk, so much for lunches and so much left over for the rent. She was always trying to get together the money for the rent, it seemed to her.

She laid her hand over the paper now and turned to look up at John.

Something in his face told her that he had seen the pathetic little list.

"Here's Millie's check. Perhaps she'd like to have it," he said gravely. "I'd take it to her myself, but she doesn't seem to want to see me."

Then he cleared his throat and laid a second check before her on the desk.

"You've been so good to me—I thought perhaps you'd let me give you this one," he went on, and, looking down at it, Sally saw that it was made out for $25.

"But I've just done Millie's work, and that's paid for," she was beginning, when he stopped her.

"No, no. You've done more work than Millie ever did for me," he said in his nice, quick way," and yesterday when I was tied up with those men from out of town you brought me that lunch."

"Anyone would have done that," replied Sally, a flush rising to her cheeks and her eyes darkening. "I saw that you weren't going to have time to go out before they came. . . . I won't keep this check."

She stood up and held it out to him.

"You've done so much for us now that I'm ashamed whenever I think of it," she said softly, huskily. "Paying for Millie's room and getting a nurse for her when you knew we couldn't afford one—and—all those flowers—and now this!"

She looked at the check again, and suddenly, surprisingly, she began to cry!

He stooped and put his arms around her exactly as he might have put his arms around a hurt child, comforting her. He stroked her hair.

In his arms she was very sweet and cool and fresh. She had none of the perfume, none of the cuddling, nestling softness of Millie. she was like an armful of apple-blossoms, picked early in the morning with the dew on them.

And then she pulled herself away from him and, still crying, ran out of the office.

On the floor at his feet lay the check he had given her. It was in two pieces. She had torn it up!

He stood looking at the two bits of pale-blue paper for a full minute. Then he stooped, picked them up, and put them both in his bill-fold.

All day the feeling of Sally in his arms stayed with him. It went with him to the florist's shop, where he bought quantities of yellow roses to be sent to Millie at the hospital. It followed him to the country club, where he played 18 holes of golf under a sky that was like white-and-blue Chinese cloisonne, and it was still with him when he smoked his bed-time pipe that night.

"I had a funny experience today," he said to his father as they sat side by side before a fragrant wood fire in the house with the green shutters. And then he went on to tell him about Sally and the check she had torn up.

"There's not one woman in a hundred would have done that," answered his father, who had been hiring and firing people all his life and thought he knew them.

John puffed away at his pipe and idly wondered how soon Millie would be out of the hospital and why she wouldn't see him when he called there. He missed Millie.

CHAPTER XXXII.

ALL that long Sunday following her outburst in John Nye's office Sally tried to make up her mind whether to go back to work for him on Monday or not.

"I've made such a fool of myself that I'm ashamed to look him in the face," she thought miserably, as she cooked dinner for her mother and Beau and Mabel. No matter how empty the family purse might be, Mrs. Jerome insisted upon have a roast, two vegetables and a dessert for Sunday dinner. She looked forward to that dinner as a child might look forward to Thanksgiving or Christmas.

"What are your plans for the day?" she asked Beau and Mabel as they all sat at the table, having the stuffed veal and the squash and scalloped tomatoes that Sally had got ready for them.

"We thought we'd take a ride out into the country," answered Mabel, who seemed to make all the plans for the pair. "We thought maybe we could buy some grape juice cheap along the road and put it away for wild parties."

Mrs. Jerome's whole face stiffened at the mention of the "wild" parties. But she said nothing about them.

"Perhaps you'll drop me off at the hospital on your way," she sniffed. "I'm going to take some of this veal and dressing to poor Millie. The nurse says she doesn't eat enough to keep a bird alive—" And all at once her face crumpled up and she began to whimper.

At the familiar sound Sally came running from the kitchen, where she had been cutting the peach cobbler that she had made for dessert.

"What's wrong mother?" she asked, looking from Beau's blank face to Mabel's scornful one. She wondered if either of them had said anything to hurt her mother's tender feelings.

"She's crying about Millie—because she won't eat," snapped Mabel. "My goodness, I just wish I could stop eating. Maybe I'd lose a hip or two!"

Sally put her arms around her mother. "There's nothing to cry about, dear," she said, smoothing back her mother's graying hair

GIFT OF SUN-TELEGRAPH

Charles Reith, adjudged winner, carried off the big silver Sun-Telegraph's trophy for building what aviators termed "the best all-around plane in the show." The exhibit, in the foyer of City-County Building, closed with a brief presentation address by City Solicitor Charles Wahlschmidt (above). Charles Reith (above) made his plane fly the record time—65 seconds. That was August 23. August 30 it traveled 592 feet—also a record.

AVIATORS JUDGES!

D. Barr Peat, manager of Bettis Field, and James J. Wagner, Mayer Field, were two of the judges who made the decisions. The contest, conducted by the Bureau of Recreation and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, was part of the National Bureau of Recreation contest. Twenty-five medals were given to winners at the close and as many more the previous days. Judges marveled at some of the planes.

Foil Suicide Attempt Of Clara Phillips

SAN QUENTIN PENITENTIARY, Cal., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Clara Phillips, the "Tiger Woman," under sentence of 10 years to life for slaying Alberta Meadows at Los Angeles in 1922, has threatened another attempt at suicide because "life can be 50 years an hour."

Everything that might be used as a weapon has been taken from Mrs. Phillips. She will be kept under guard, Warden James Holohan said today after revealing how she tried to end her life the night of September 1.

Warden Holohan said Mrs. Phillips' sobs in her cell attracted a matron, who found the prisoner had slashed her left wrist with a safety razor blade used in embroidery work. She had wrapped the wrist with a towel and sweater to avoid detection.

"They gave me a life sentence for what I did down South," Mrs. Phillips is reported as saying. "Well, life can be 50 years an hour. I'll make it as close to an hour as possible. I'll try it again. It's no use trying to live in prison. I wish I had made a good job of it."

The warden said she had been morose and recently quarreled with friends.

OFFER TO OPEN MINE ON $6 SCALE

The Harwick Coal and Coke Company, a subsidiary of the Duquesne Light Company, has offered to reopen its Harwick mine if sufficient men agree to a $6-a-day wage.

The offer was made in the form of a notice posted near the mine, which is used as a source of coal for the operation of the Colfax power plant. The notice states that "if sufficient number of men on or before September 20, 1927, signify their willingness to work in the mine, the company will operate, otherwise the operation at Harwick mine will be delayed indefinitely."

Contemplation of the purchase of the winter supply of coal prompted the offer, according to Frank R. Phillips, vice president of the Duquesne Light Company.

Jonah Outdone as Fish Steals Boat Propeller

CONNEAUT LAKE, Pa., Sept. 12.—The weirdest fish story of the season is told by Hoyt D. Stockwell, of the Jamestown, Mercer County Fire Department. Riding across the lake with friends near Sheldon Hall, there was a dull thud under the keel of his motorboat. Shutting down the motor he found the propeller gone. A moment later a huge muscallonge leaped from the water, the propeller in its side. The lunge swam on, Stockwell's party, so he says, had to be towed ashore.

DOG DISCOVERS PAY ROBBERS' ARSENAL

A dog yesterday discovered what city detectives believe was the arsenal of a payroll robber gang. Three shotguns, three 30-30 rifles and three revolvers were found on the old Wilcox farm, Crafton Heights.

They were uncovered by a hiker investigating the barking of his dog when it found a heavy rubber coat in the underbrush. The shotguns and rifles were under the coat and the revolvers nearby. No ammunition was found.

HILL, TAKEN TO MURDER SPOT, DENIES GUILT

STREATOR, Ill., Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Harry Hill stood beside the shallow grave in which the slain body of his mother had been found, in the basement of the Hill home, here today and denied knowing anything of her murder.

Only candle light flickered in the basement as authorities, surrounding young Hill, whom they had rushed by automobile 200 miles across country from La Crosse, Wis., in order to elude habeas corpus proceedings said to have been planned in Chicago, questioned him.

The youth accused of matricide was shown several articles as he stood by the basement grave; the clay-spattered shoes, said to be the same size as those Hill wears; a shovel which had been used in turning the earth, and a handkerchief found shortly after the murder and turned over to the state's attorneys.

Sleepless and tired from the long automobile ride, young Hill vouchsafed no information. In tones of vexation he repeated that he "had nothing to say."

Blanche Murosky, 18, of 921 South Manor street, has been missing from her home since Labor Day. Her mother, who is ill, asked the Missing Persons Bureau today to aid in finding the girl.

The daughter, who also uses the name Anderson, told her mother when she left, dressed in hiking clothes, that she was going to Conneaut Lake to work. She has not been located there.

Blanche is 5 feet, 7 inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, has blue eyes and light brown hair.

Policeman Takes Back Runaway Bride

The "Sandwich shoppe" romance of Mabel Keebler, 24, and Harry Simmons, 19, both of Chicago, interrupted here Saturday when the two were arrested on complaint of the woman's patrolman husband, has run its course.

Milton Keebler, the Chicago policeman, is back home with his wife, and Simmons, accompanied by his father, Morris Simmons, and his brother, George Simmons, will leave tonight for the same city.

Yesterday in the matron's department, Keebler and his wife embraced, vowed undying love, and both promised to forget the mistakes of the past. Then they started for home.

Simmons, arraigned in Morals Court this morning, started to tell what prompted him to run away with Mrs. Keebler, was stopped by Magistrate A. D. Brandon and held until his relatives arrived. He promised to keep away from Mrs. Keebler.

FATHER COX SITS ON MORALS COURT BENCH

SEEKS SERMON SUBJECT MATTER

The Rev. Father James R. Cox, St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, sat on the Morals Court bench with Magistrate A. D. Brandon and his clerk, Miss [illegible] Crowe, to obtain material for a coming sermon. The session is shown above. "This court seems to me to be the busiest place in Pittsburgh," Father Cox said. "The dispensing of justice as carried out by Magistrate Brandon appears to me more like a correction conference than the stern administration of the law and is the work the churches strive to do."

GLIDDEN, NOTED AUTOMOBILE PIONEER, DIES

BOSTON, Sept. 12—(AP)—One of the country's pioneers in transportation and communication, Col. Charles J. Glidden, is dead at his home here in his seventieth year.

Col. Glidden made the first automobile trip around the world, covering 46,328 miles in many countries. He organized the first aerial transportation company to operate between New York and Paris.

Years before, he obtained the first subscriber to an exchange telephone system and was associated with Alexander Graham Bell in early experiments. At one time he owned one-sixth of the Bell Telephone system in the United States.

As a balloonist, Col. Glidden made 42 ascensions in this country and others on the continent. He liked flying and did much of it.

Mrs. Glidden, the former Lucy Glenworth, whom he married in 1875 and who had a part in many of his adventures, was at his bedside when the end came yesterday. Funeral services are to be from the

The boat was about a mile off shore when sighted by the picket boat and as no trace of the men has yet been found it is believed they were drowned.

The boat was seized and brought into port here while a search is being made for the two men.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Irregular Teething No Cause for Worry

SOMEBODY has said the teeth are our trouble from the cradle to the grave. There is much truth in this statement. To it may be added the comment that neglect of the teeth has carried many a man to his grave far ahead of his time.

DR. COPELAND

Sometimes we speak of the first teeth as the "milk teeth." There are 20 of them and ordinarily they are cut in pretty regular fashion. When born, the baby has four smooth gums. They are a delicate pink in color. The edges of the gums are hard and somewhat sharp.

As the child grows the gums grow fat. They become broader and more prominent. At the age of six or seven months the first teeth appear.

We speak of the sharp edged front teeth as the "incisors." They are made to cut or incise the food so to grind it, as the back teeth are intended to do.

There are four incisors on each jaw, eight in all. The lower central pair are the first ones to appear. That is if it is commonly true that they come first. The mother need not be alarmed, however, if the teeth appear in some other order. Your baby may not be content to do as the run of children do. In consequence the lower central incisors may not be first. They may cut through long after other teeth have arrived.

After the two lower teeth have appeared, all four of the upper incisors are likely to "erupt" as the dentists call the appearance of teeth. By the time the child is nine or ten months old there will be six teeth to its credit.

At the age of a year or 14 or 15 months, the lower lateral incisors appear. At about the same time the foremost of the back teeth or "molars" come along. This experience completes a set of 8 dozen teeth.

There will be a space between the front teeth and those newly erupted molars until the "canine" teeth appear. These make their arrival at about the age of a year and a half to two years. At the end of the second year, then, the youngster has 16 teeth.

It takes some time for the last of the milk teeth to appear. This is because they are not needed as yet for such food as is proper to give so young a child. But by the time the thirtieth month comes along the back molars are out and the full set of 20 milk teeth is ready for business.

It is not uncommon to hear of a baby being born with teeth or a tooth. Such teeth may fall out very soon and be replaced by the regulation milk teeth. Or they may serve their purpose until the permanent teeth appear.

On the other hand, there may be no sign of a tooth until the baby is 8 or 10 months old. Your neighbor's baby may get a tooth at the age of 3 or 4 months.

The thing I want to make clear to the young mother is that she need not be disturbed and unhappy because her infant is not following the common practice. There is plenty of time to get all the needed teeth. Individuality, after all, is the rule of life.

Answer to Health Queries

A. K. Q.—My 5-month-old baby has a swollen gland below the ear. What causes this and is it harmful?

A.—May be due to tonsils or an ear condition. Have your doctor advise treatment after he has located the cause of the trouble. There must be infection in the system.

N. B. Q.—What is the cause of a 15-month-old baby's gums turning dark? I wash them daily, but it cannot be removed.

A.—The baby's diet is probably lacking in bone-making foods. Consult your doctor and have him prescribe a suitable diet.

All Want to Run Is Democrats' Trouble—Will

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 12—The trouble with the Democrats is that they all want to run for President. If they had somebody on their side that would announce he didn't choose to run, why he would be such a big novelty that he would be nominated by acclamation.

REFEREES TO MEET

There will be a special meeting of the West Penn Soccer Referees' Association on Saturday evening. Secretary Frank Hulet has received a communication from the U. S. F. A. stating that the fees this season will be $10 with $1.50 for each member. This question will be settled at this session.

Wonderful weather accompanied the opening game of the American and International soccer leagues yesterday. Reports state that large crowds were the order of the day at the games. The sport club opened the new field with a big flourish.

The Corinthians rather upset the dope by handing a defeat to the McKees Rocks club. The game and score was close, and the unusual protest of an operator-to-be often along before the game started. The home team did not have nets.

Hatfieldville lived up to its pre-season dope by losing the McKeesport United team. Hoby Robinson has gathered together a bunch of youngsters that will be hard to beat. The fast aggregation will be a hard-hitting team this year, but youthful delay counts a lot.

National Tube got away to a good start, defeating the Douglas A. C. in a one-sided game by a 4-to-1 score. The Tube boys found Hernandez in strange territory and Bill Montgomery's charges played a good opening game.

West Penn, another outfit with plenty of experience capped the opening game points at the expense of the newly formed Braddock United. The Valley team are considered favorites to finish on top, and there is going to be plenty of real competition.

PIRATES' LEAD GROWS

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

AN OPEN Sunday in the schedule of the Phillies yesterday gave Manager John Phelan McInnis a chance to discuss the National League pennant race in addition to playing a round of golf with some theatrical friends appearing at a local showhouse.

The former Pirate first baseman considers the race one of the greatest in the history of the major leagues. He declines to pick a winner, declaring that four clubs still have a chance to finish on top. He appears to be impressed by the quality of ball that the Giants are playing, but says that schedule conditions are in Pittsburgh's favor and admits that the McGrawites' chances may be hurt by the long string of doubleheaders confronting them on their present western trip.

"THIS week is likely to have a tremendous bearing on the outcome," said Stuffy. "New York has got to play three doubleheaders in St. Louis, starting Tuesday, and meanwhile Pittsburgh must play six games in four days with Boston. This may prove the turning point for both the Pirates and Giants. The pennant chance of each club may hinge largely on the outcome of these games, and the one that makes the better showing may have a decided advantage as a result.

"The fact that Boston has already won 10 out of 16 games from Pittsburgh indicates that the Braves may make a heap of trouble for the buccaneers when they come here, and not only will New York be up against a hard fight in every one of those St. Louis events, but the strain of playing six games in three days will involve a strain on McGraw's pitchers that may work to Pittsburgh's advantage later on.

"NATURALLY, there will be a similar strain on the St. Louis pitchers, and as the Cardinals also are contenders, their flag chances, too, will be affected. The tough series will be a vitally important one for both clubs, and it may eliminate either the Giants or the Cards.

"The Giants are playing great ball and will not be easily beaten. It is clear that the schedule is in Pittsburgh's favor, however, as the Pirates will play their important games against Boston and New York at home, and will not be required to meet St. Louis again.

"But I would not attempt to pick a winner. It is anybody's race and even the Cubs have a chance. A couple of defeats for one of the leaders would make it possible for another team to crawl right up there."

MINNIS was asked about the rumor in circulation recently that he intended to resign as manager of the Phillies.

"Not on your life," he replied. "I have not the slightest intention of resigning and such a thought never entered my head. I signed a two-year contract which has another year to run, and I will be right on this job again in 1928. I like baseball too well to give it up, and I will not quit or get out of it until they kick me out.

"Far from being tired of my job, I have found managerial work very interesting. The Phillies would have made a much better showing this year but for the fact that we had a lot of hard luck and lost numerous games by such scores as 1 to 0, 2 to 1 and 3 to 2. Some of the hitters upon whom we were depending most fell into slumps and did not come up to expectations, and we were short on good relief pitchers besides. Mitchell's sore arm was a costly blow to us, rendering him unable to pitch for eight weeks. I am sure our club will do much better next year."

McInnis said he knew nothing of the legal tangle in the McGraw-Kaufmann trade, or the charge that the deal was made before waivers were obtained. "That part of it was, of course, handled from the executive offices," he said. "McGraw has not put in an appearance, and all that I know about it is the report that the matter is to be taken before Commissioner Landis."

WHEN a friend of Frank Moran, impressed by the retired fighter's appearance in spite of his 40 years, remarked to Frank that he looked as if he could put himself in real fighting fitness in a short time, calling attention to the fact that Jack Johnson and Jack Twin Sullivan have been fighting at the age of 40, to say nothing of the fact that Jem Mace came over from England at the age of 39 and whipped Tom Allen for the heavyweight championship at Kennerville, La., Moran quickly silenced him.

"Never again," he declared. "I made up my mind years ago to quit training and fighting when it ceased to be fun. That's what I did and I am going to stick to it."

DISCUSSING the question of retirement time from another angle, Frank said: "I am sorry that poor Harry Greb did not heed the advice I gave him once. We were talking about the danger to which a boxer is exposed of suffering serious injuries to his eyes, and I told Harry that as soon as punishment began to affect the old blinkers I would retire in a hurry. I advised him to do the same, but he kept on even after he had lost one eye, and I believe that that injury led indirectly, but none the less surely, to his death."

BUCS END QUAKER SERIES TODAY

one-half a game below the Giants and Cards.

Opinions are well divided among the players as to which is the most formidable of the three opponents of the Pirates, so that there was no real agreement as to which entry Our Boys would like to see beaten.

But Donie Bush had a good solution for the problem.

"The one big thing for us to do," said Donie, "is to keep on winning. Let's forget about the others and win as often as we can."

That's about the best advice on the subject. But, of course, the free-for-all scrap is a source of deep interest to countless fans who are trying to figure out the outcome of the race.

LAST GAME WITH QUAKERS

Only three weeks remained in the home stretch as the Pirates prepared to meet the Phillies this afternoon. Successive victories on Friday and Saturday, with yesterday for recreation, added to the morale of the Bush-whackers, every man on the squad being confident.

Bush states he would use Carmen Hill on the mound against the Quakers this afternoon, while Manager Stuffy McInnis, of the Phillies, declared in favor of Alex Ferguson, one of his clever right-handers. The Phils are shy of pitchers, but McInnis has several hurlers who make the road tough for any team. Privett and Ulrich looked like real hurlers in the two defeats sustained by the Quakers. The contest this afternoon will be the last of the season between the two clubs.

The Braves will be here tomorrow for six battles in four days. In view of the feeling between the Bush and Bancroft teams the six fights should be loaded with exciting events.

DEMPSEY, TUNNEY GO INTO SECLUSION

HE CAN SOCK 'EM

RED LUCAS

Lucas, a mound star of the Cincinnati Reds, also is that rare animal, a hard-hitting pitcher. He can hit with the best that ever went to the plate after toeing the rubber.

BOTH WILL FINISH WORK IN SECRET

LINCOLN FIELD, CRETE, Ill., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Amid secrecy so strict that not even newspapermen will be allowed to watch workouts, Jack Dempsey will complete training for his battle to win back the heavyweight crown from Gene Tunney at night and under the glare of ring lamps similar to those that will light Soldier Field September 22.

This radical departure from ring custom, rivaled in heavyweight fight history only by the absolute seclusion of Georges Carpentier in training at Manhasset, L. I., for his fight with Dempsey in 1921, went into effect last night, when the former champion worked four vicious rounds after all but one newspaperman had left the camp.

Pledging the scribe to secrecy just for the day, Dempsey outlined the plan he believes will lead to regaining of the laurels lost to Tunney on the night of the big rain in Philadelphia last fall. Earlier in the day Jack worked lightly at the punching bags for four rounds and met the correspondents in a half-hour "fanning bee" without revealing the new departure worked out by Manager Lou P. Flynn.

HOLDS NIGHT SESSION

Then, shortly before 9 p. m., when all of the newspapermen but a lone guard for the day had departed, lights suddenly blazed up over the auxiliary ring pitched on the race track lawn. With all but camp attaches excluded a half-dozen sparring partners warmed up about the ring and Dempsey appeared in full fighting regalia.

Fighting with a speed and viciousness that exceeded anything the former Uhlenhoder has displayed at any previous point in the "comeback" training campaign for either Jack Sharkey or Tunney, Dempsey whaled Roy Williams, a rugged Negro middleweight, about the ring for a round. The bell found Williams "out on his feet" from the slashing attack and badly hurt from a searing body bombardment.

For another round Dempsey heard Charley Schnur of Chicago at a fast clip, practicing a new manner of evading the left jab Jack knows Tunney will train about his ears on the night of September 22. Reverting to his old bobbing, weaving style with body thrust Dempsey evaded all of Schnur's rather crude efforts. Previously Jack has been catching left jabs with either his right glove or chin, and more frequently with the latter.

As the pace increased Allentown Joe Gans, Negro middleweight, possessed of a splendid left hand, took over responding duties. Gans landed scarcely a dozen lefts and in return took the worst lacing Jack ever gave me in all the months of training.

Dempsey finished the workout by pinning Joe with every gun on Allen Cox, a Boston light heavyweight, who stood up under a terrific lacing but came back for more.

FLYNN EXPLAINS MOVE

With the workout over, Flynn then announced that Dempsey had bested before the newspapermen for the last time before entering the ring against Tunney. Jack will work nightly next week and finish heavy training Sunday.

The scribes will be admitted only for the exercise work scheduled now for every afternoon until Dempsey hangs up training gloves for the fight that probably will prove the last of the former heavyweight king's career—win or lose.

"The coming bout with Tunney means more than anything else in the world to both Dempsey and myself," Flynn said. "I cannot risk sending him into the Soldier Field ring in any but the best shape of his career. He must be the Dempsey of his greatest days.

"I know that I must work with Jack alone, without the distraction of newspapermen and 'friends,' who form a crowd of at least 100 at the most private of workouts. This move will make him many enemies for us, I'm afraid, but I must think of the welfare of Jack Dempsey alone.

"Then there is the risk of Jack losing confidence when he hears of newspaper stories that 'pan' his fighting ability even though we both know that practice along these new lines alone makes perfect. Every ounce of Dempsey's strength and determination is in the fight to regain that title. We're going to succeed, but we must do it alone and regardless of the expense."

TUNNEY TO BAR ALL

LAKE VILLA, Ill., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Secret training, hidden even from Manager Billy Gibson and newspapermen, is Gene Tunney's program from today on for the remaining 10 days' preparation to defend his heavyweight championship.

"I have my own ideas of training," said Tunney. "There are certain punches I want to perfect and there is no use letting the entire world know the style of attack I am going to use in the Dempsey fight. I made a study of Dempsey when he defeated Jack Sharkey and I intend to fight him according to the deductions I have made after seeing that fight.

"Then there are other things I want to do in private, aside from boxing. I have less than two weeks before the fight and I intend to put in a strenuous week and take things easy for the last few days before the contest."

The champion said the secret workout was a part of his training which he had followed for several years.

In midsummer heat, Gene traveled at a dizzy pace through five rounds yesterday in what may be his last public appearance before September 22. More than 4,000 fans, men, women and children, the largest crowd to see the champion in action since he arrived at the Cedar Crest Club, watched Tunney speed through two snappy sessions with Jackie Williams and then punch Bully Vidabeck around as usual for three more. The rounds were shortened to two minutes each because of the heat.

PIRATES BUY PITCHER

Irwin Brame, right-handed pitcher with Jersey City in the International League, has been purchased by the Pirates, the office of the local baseball club announced today. Jersey City is to receive cash and a player to be named later in exchange for the moundsman.

He is expected to report to the Pirates tomorrow or Wednesday.

DODGERS GET TYSON

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Al Tyson, former New York Giant outfielder, and one of the strong supporters of the pennant winning International team of Buffalo, has been sold to the Brooklyn Nationals for $20,000, the local management announces.

DEMPSEY USES TRUSTY RIGHT

BUT IT'S IN COURT

GIRLS' BASKETBALL ABOLISHED IN LOCAL HIGH SCHOOLS

A new plan, which will substitute competition between class teams in the various schools, will not affect this season's schedule, but will become effective in the 1928-29 basketball season.

The immense popularity which girls' scholastic basketball has enjoyed in recent years rather than lack of interest brought about the change in policy. The reasons for the abolition of girls' "varsity" basketball, as set forth in the official bulletin prepared by the authors of the change in policy are as follows:

"Reasons for change: Due to the increasing number of schools, the lengthened school day and the influx mainly between schools, the following problems have developed in our present method of scheduling inter-school athletics:

"1. Our gymnasiums and the instructors' time must be given to a squad of but more than 20 girls during afternoons a week for five months during basket ball season. Only two afternoons remain to be given to the hundreds of girls who are not skilful enough to make the one varsity team of the school.

"2. This varsity squad of girls very often must go home after dark, from a practice or a game, usually too late to leave with the rest of the families and too physically tired to study their lessons or help their mothers.

"3. Nights before games many girls are too excited to sleep; during a game every atom of nervous and physical energy is exerted to such an extent that all joy of the game is lost.

TELL MERITS OF NEW POLICY

The official bulletin also lists the merits that the instigators of the change see in the new girls' sports program, as follows:

"Inter-school athletics have such valuable elements that they should not be forced out, as has been done in most cities. There is a tremendous worthwhile value in teams from one school playing teams from another school. This being true, many boards of education from a school would have that privilege. A change from inter-school to class organization to inter-class team organization would mean

"1. Seventy-nine inter-class teams rather than 24 inter-school teams.

"2. The after-school time of the instructors and the use of the gymnasiums would be devoted to the many other boys to the fore.

"3. Inter-class games would create keener interest in inter-class games and make athletics for girls a school organization rather than a team organization.

The decision to abolish girls' "varsity" basketball was reached last February by the basketball committee, working in conjunction with Miss Beach. The members of the committee, which makes the laws governing girls' basketball in Pittsburgh schools, are Miss Jean McCracken, of Allegheny, chairman; Miss Margaret Mercer, of Fifth Avenue, and Miss Wilhelmina Wehmeier, of South. Miss McCracken is a sister of Herb McCracken, former Pitt grid star and now coach at Lafayette.

Announcement of the change in policy was withheld until its merits could be studied and presented to the high officials in local school circles.

CLASS TEAMS TO COMPETE

Under the new arrangement, class teams in each school will play two games with class teams in other schools each year, one game to be played at home and the other on the opponents' floor. The highest score will be determined by dividing the total number of points made in scheduled games by the number of classes in the junior or senior school. An example of the scoring plan, published in the official bulletin, follows:

"Example: Schenley, with one junior high class team, makes a score of 24 points; dividing 24 by 1, gives Schenley a final score of 24 points. Westinghouse, with three junior classes, makes a score of 72 points; dividing 72 by 3 gives Westinghouse a final score of 24 points."

A trophy is to be awarded the school making the highest score.

Eligibility rules now observed in interscholastic "varsity" competition were adopted, almost without change, as the laws to govern the new competition. The most important of the new rules is that "A girl may not take part, as an inter-school participant for the same class, more than one year."

In keeping with the conclusion that the games as played at the present time entail a too great physical strain it was decided that the time of play in the new competition should be cut. For the junior girls the time of game is cut almost in half, and games involving senior girls are to be 10 or more minutes shorter.

TWO SECTIONS ARRANGED

That the game might not lose its championship flavor, the city schools have been divided into two sections and each season will be climaxed by a titular series involving the sectional champions. The makeup of the sections is to be as follows: Section I—Allegheny, Oliver, Perry, Carrick, South Hills, Langley, Larimer and Knoxville; Section II—Fifth Avenue, South, Schenley, Westinghouse, Business, Gladstone and Allderdice.

A rotating schedule has been worked out so that each class team, meeting two opponents each year, can meet new opponents as often as is possible. The schedule now prepared will govern the competition for the next eight years.

Miss Beach and her aides are aware that the announcement of the change in policy is likely to bring forth numerous protests and for little consideration, but are confident that the new plan will work out to the best interests of the girls, and that the new games soon will enjoy as much popularity as the present "varsity" competition ever knew. The approval of Dr. Harry H. Barns, medical director, is regarded by Miss Beach as a good shelter should a storm of protests break.

The Philosophical View

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

TO FOLKS who can't take their tennis or leave it alone a great tragedy has just occurred. In case you aren't one of this tribe, we won't keep you in suspense any longer, but hasten to inform you that it has to do with the loss of the Davis Cup by the United States, after holding it for seven consecutive years.

The Davis Cup is a bowl emblematic of the world's team tennis championship, donated back in 1900 by Dwight L. Davis, then, as now, a big figure in tennisdom. Davis today is Secretary of War. Year by year the competition for the cup has become keener, so that now nations travel all over the globe seeking it. The United States won it the first two years and then lost it. Great Britain and Australia monopolizing possession until 1913, when Maurice McLaughlin and R. N. Williams flashed to regain it for its and their homeland.

Australia came back to win it the next year and then the great war intervened and there was no more play for the trophy until 1919, when Australia, with the amazing Norman Brooks still able to wield a racquet, but with his partner, Anthony Wilding, one of the casualties of the big conflict, made a stout defense, turning back Great Britain in the challenge round, four matches to one.

THE year 1920 saw Bill Tilden come to the front, and, with Williams, Billy Johnston, Vincent Richards, Watson Washburn, at al., the United States took a commanding position in the tennis domain. The eagle screamed in the challenge round in Australia that year, America making a clean sweep, 5-0. This score was repeated against Japan the following year and almost duplicated the next two years, in each of which Australia was able to win only one match, after playing through the preliminary rounds and making the long trip from the Land Down Under.

So pronounced was the supremacy of the United States in the racquet realm that the next two years—1924 and 1925—saw two more clean-sweep victories, against Australia and France, and last year France again bowed, 4-1. Through all of this long string of triumphs, two figures stood out pre-eminent, and they came to be loved by the tennisites as Big Bill and Little Bill, their surnames being Tilden and Johnston.

Again this pair were the hopes of their nation in the latest challenge round, played last week-end. And they failed, losing to France, three matches to two, after gaining a lead of two to one, permitting the cherished trophy to leave its homeland again, this time for its first resting place in France. Little Bill, who had been such a giant in past seasons, despite his lack of size and weight, his heart seemingly outweighing his very self, and Big Bill, who had been able to rise to great heights in similar moments before, simply weren't equal to the occasion this time. Age, which overtakes athletes at an early period, had been gradually creeping up on them and finally won the chase. The victory of a quartet of French youths was the answer.

BUT why the weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth in tendisdom? Why the thought that the earth has crashed and time no longer will go on?

Why not the philosophical view that this HAD TO HAPPEN some time, that it was inevitable, as certain to occur as death and taxes? Tilden and Johnston, despite their almost superhuman brilliance and lasting power, couldn't go on forever, even as McLoughlin, the comet, and Brookes, the master, couldn't go on forever.

And there are young American stars coming on. Youngsters who will rise to take the places of the two Bills, who so gloriously have done their bit and carried on. Johnny Doeg, young George Lott and the others will fill the shoes of the veterans. Perhaps not in a season, but soon.

Meanwhile, we can revel in our memories of the heyday of Tilden and Johnston—our two great Bills.

FRENCHMEN WHO ANNEXED DAVIS CUP

THEY BEAT TILDEN AND JOHNSTON

Here are the members of the French Davis Cup team which terminated the United States' hold on the trophy after it had stretched across seven consecutive years. Left to right they are Rene LaCoste, who beat both Tilden and Johnston in the singles; Henri Cochet, who lost to Tilden, but defeated Johnston in the deciding match on Saturday; Ambassador Gandet; and Jacques Brugnon and Jean Borotra, who lost in the doubles to Tilden and Francis Hunter.

WEIBLE TO HELP COACH LAYDEN

After his lay off of yesterday, Elmer Layden, Duke mentor, plans to resume work on a more extensive scale today. Assistant Coach John D. Weible, formerly of Notre Dame, arrived here today. Weible is a sturdily built man weighing 185 pounds. He has a clear idea of his work, having worked out with the Dukes last Friday. He will be especially helpful as a line coach and his knowledge of the Notre Dame system, together with his former coaching experience at Vanderbilt, will add greatly to Duquesne's chances on the gridiron this fall.

Sally's Shoulders

ENGROSSING DIFFERENT LIVELY DRAMATIC

John Nye Learns That Sally Has a Mind of Her Own; She Refuses a Check and holding her face against her shoulder. Mrs. [illegible] a dreadful [illegible] going to take [illegible] herself again. [illegible] you'll see."

"She's so [illegible]," sobbed Mrs. [illegible] doesn't seem to [illegible] her. [illegible] about her future."

"Mother, [illegible] you see that big [illegible] window."

Mrs. Jerome lifted her head and gave her a startled look. Of course, I see it," she answered, plainly puzzled. "What about it?"

Sally took on a more cheerful tone more cheerfully than it felt. Her feelings warbled.

"Well, just this," she said. "That plaid was [illegible] but a stack a week, and it was so white and [illegible] that I thought it [illegible] would [illegible]. And look at it! [illegible] make you think of Millie's pink and pretty. Please don't cry about her mother. I know she'll be all right. I just feel that she will be—"

Mabel burst out laughing. "Girl," she said with a sneer. "You're wasting your talents working around there. You ought to turn into a woman preacher or something."

"Well, come on, Maggie, if you're going with us you'd better dry those tears and get your hat on."

For some reason best known to herself Mabel had taken to calling Mrs. Jerome "Maggie." Every time she did it Mrs. Jerome frowned and winced but that did not bother Mabel.

At 4 o'clock, while Sally was ironing her white blouse, Ted Sloan came running up the back stairs, taking them two at a time and making a great noise.

"Gosh, it's a pip of a day! Want to go for a ride in Chapsides?" he asked. That was what he called his car—"Old Chapsides."

Sally smiled up at him as she straightened the collar of the waist before her on the board.

"I'd love to go. But you'll have to stop at the hospital for mother and bring her home. After that we can go."

He did not look particularly pleased. But he said, "All right" and went down stairs much more slowly than he had come up.

When they got to the hospital an hour later Sloan's little red car stood in the street before it. Ted, who knew a thing or two about second-hand cars, looked when Sally showed it to him.

"It isn't worth a hundred dollars," he declared. "And I'm going with [illegible] to Miller's room and tell him."

[illegible] very little talking after [illegible] stepped into the ground [illegible] floor room. For the [illegible] was just getting ready to go, and Millie was sitting up in bed, watching them [illegible] as she talked [illegible] with her mother [illegible] heart was [illegible] of pain that her mother had brought to her. It was unbearable.

"Don't bother to come in and see me, Ted," she said out when she saw his red head above Sally's dark one. "But I want to talk to you, Sally. She was like [illegible] Barry receiving her [illegible] in her bedchamber, offering [illegible] here and that one there."

Sally stood [illegible].

"How do you feel today?" Ted [illegible].

"Rotten," replied Millie, almost as if she were glad to be feeling badly.

"My pet's all gone," she went on [illegible]. I don't know what's the matter with me. I guess maybe the old hospital gives me the blues. How can I eat in a place like this, with people going past the door on stretchers?"

She broke off and gave Sally an intent look, and then held out a slip of paper. A telephone number was written upon it.

"That's Daisy Davidson's number. Tell him I want to see him, will you?"

Sally put the paper into her shabby gray leather purse.

"Yes, but might you to see him when you won't see Mr. Nye?" she asked, her eyes passing over fresh-cut roses and shaggy white chrysanthemums that stood on the window sills and the dresser. She knew that John Nye had sent them.

"That's some more of my business." Millie held out her hand for the paper. "Give me back that telephone number. I'll have the nurse give him my message."

But Sally put the bag behind her back. "No, I'll call him. But it does look funny, refusing to see the man you've made up your mind to marry and then asking another man to come. I think Mother or someone in the family ought to be here when he does come, too."

"If you say another word I'll get right out of this bed!" Millie threatened angrily. "I just won't be here and listen to you rave a minute longer—trying to tell me what to do and what not to do! You're a year younger than I am and don't forget it!"

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

CHIC CHERIE

In pursuit of the not-too-elusive Fall fashion, Cherie is gazing at evening wraps. Since velvet of all kinds is evidently going to be one of the most desirable fabrics, this wrap of transparent velvet with its cape-line shoulders and its loops and folds of drapery would seem to be about the newest.

Who Wouldn't Be Chilly?

You might not believe it, but if Cherie buys this magnificent affair of white satin trimmed with white fox fur, it will be because of the little ruffles at the wrists. Five ruffles at each wrist and really, you know, they can't be much more than 99 44-100 per cent of the cost of the thing—but so amusing!

LATEST FASHIONS

On the other hand—and on the other model—the case against ruffles is presented admirably by an evening coat of gold moire with a jabot collar and deep cuffs of Summer ermine. The metallic brocades are as smart this season as last in spite of the popularity of plain white or black fashions.

Speaking of plain black, and of transparent velvet and of evening wraps, there's this wrap. It's a scarf cut with sleeves, and if Cherie's tour of investigation hasn't filled her with envy and all uncharitableness it's only because Aunt Em's pocketbook is so wide and so deep and so awfully handy.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

A Mysterious Foreigner Says His Name Is Lincoln

"WHAT on earth is the matter?" Mother Graham demanded acridly, as we neared the pump by the farm where Katie and Jim with an odd-looking foreigner were engaged in excited conversation, which Katie's shrill tones dominated. "I did hope, Margaret, that while I was gone you would make some attempt to train that girl. But she's worse than ever."

"You mustn't expect Madge to waste her time upon training servants now, Mother," Dicky said with apparent sincerity and good humor. "A woman holding the military and the position she does can't afford to bother with trifles."

I flushed, for I was not sure how much of his little speech was meant as a quiet stiletto thrust. But I was left in no doubt as to my mother-in-law's meaning when next she spoke.

"Humph!" she said with a sniff. "When a woman can't afford to bother with her home it's time that she stopped having one."

It took all my supply of "grace and grit," the two qualities so deplored by mothers-in-law, to answer her with smiling nonchalance.

"Yes, I agree with you, when she cannot delegate her duties to someone else. Katherine is taking my place wonderfully this year. But you know, Mother, Katie is an unchanging bogard. I don't believe even you could soften that voice of hers, and you're the most successful animal tamer I know."

I laughed softly and maneuvered the car so that before she could answer we were close to the gesticulating group by the pump. We saw a grizzled foreign-looking man of perhaps 60 years, with the unmistakable air of one who has held some rank in the army. He was scrupulously dressed and had the air of reticence which upper servants have brought to a degree unsurpassable by any other class of people. He was endeavoring to make himself understood to Jim he was completely ignoring Katie's execrable English. But Katie flung his dignity to the four winds when she excitedly hailed us, though I doubt if he understood anything save her contemptuous gestures.

"Ins vaunch of soup greens," Katie began, and I knew from her favorite epithet that the man had incurred her deepest displeasure—"he vants somethings. I tink yet vater. But don't you geef heem vun drop. He great beeg piece of limburger mit no manners on heem. He com in here as eef he own you und us und dis place, and—"

"Be quiet, Katie," Jacky commanded sternly, as she ran out of breath for a fractional second. Then he turned to the stranger, and said courteously:

"Do not bother with the English. Are you French?"

The man's face brightened.

"Oui, oui," he answered, and proceeded to speak in French with fair rapidity, but with an accent which even my limited knowledge told me was very poor. I felt a tug at my sleeve, and turning my head, found Katie close beside me.

"Bah!" she muttered truculently. "Eef dot rooster a Frenchy, den me, I'm Queen Mary of England."

"Hush, Katie," I bade her hurriedly, feeling my mother-in-law's disapproving eyes upon me, and hastily turning an irrepressible laugh into a cough. But I shared my little maid's opinion. The man's claim to be a Frenchman was false.

That Dicky was annoyed I knew almost at once. He is never an an adept at hiding his reactions to arrogance—and that unpleasant quality was most noticeable in the stranger's voice and demeanor. Finally, Dicky's rather rapid French speech slowed down until I could understand what he said.

"We will sell you no water, but if you need it, and ask in a fitting manner, we gladly will give you whatever you wish. But your present manner is offensive."

The man's face reddened, and he spoke slowly, in execrable English.

"My niece, my wife and I, we do not ask favors. We pay for everything. We have all money necessary."

Dicky looked at him curiously, his anger mysteriously changed into amusement, as so often happens with his mercurial temperament.

"Now that's very nice," he said. "You're luckier than most of us over here. Where do you come from, anyway? Aren't you afraid you'll get lost over here in America?"

Of all Dicky's rigamarole, I saw the man only grasped the last sentence, and that for some reason it disturbed him.

"No, no, you mistake," he said, quickly. "We good American, good American name, Lincoln. My name Henry Lincoln. Sorry I make you mad. If you say ass vater, I ask. Please."

"That's all right, old sport," Dicky laughed. "Take all you want."

"Tank you, tank you, I send man for water. Tank you. Good-day."

He hurried off down the drive while we stood motionless, watching him. When he was out of hearing, Dicky exploded into laughter.

"Whatever he is, he's a good picker on American names, I'll say that for him," he said. "Lincoln! It's a wonder he didn't call himself Abraham."

But Katie plucked at my sleeve and held me back from the rest, her mercurial face aglow with excitement.

WHAT'S the ANSWER?

1. In what year was the San Francisco fire?
2. Do swans sing just before they die?
3. What is a Manx cat?
4. Why do no trees grow on the tops of mountains?
5. Where is Batavia?
6. Who was the "Bee of Athens?"
7. What is Adams's Ale?
8. How many units are there in a gross?
9. After water reaches the boiling point, can you make it any hotter?
10. Who wrote "Adam Bede?"

The answers to these questions may be found in tomorrow's paper.

Here are the answers to Saturday's questions.

1. A1 is the registry mark of underwriters, indicating first class. In the English Lloyds "A1" denotes that a vessel is well built and seaworthy; the figure 1 indicating that her rigging, anchors, cables, etc., are in good condition.

2. In Irish folk-lore, a banshee is a species of female evil genius who is believed to herald an approaching death by uttering unearthly shrieks and wailings.

3. The Murderer's Bible is a copy of the Scriptures issued in 1801, and so named from an error in Jude 16, the word "murderers" appearing instead of "murmurers."

4. Undertow at a beach is caused by the fact that as one wave rushes toward shore another recedes from it, the receding wave flowing underneath the incoming one. This receding wave is the undertow.

5. The Century Plant blooms much more frequently than once every hundred years, although sometimes 25 or 50 years will elapse between bloomings.

6. Lobsters are naturally blue. They are only red after they have been boiled.

7. If fine sand becomes thoroughly saturated with water, it becomes loose and unstable and anything in it will sink. This is called quicksand.

8. A salamander is a harmless little reptile which in former days was supposed to be so terribly cold that it could not only live in fire, but could put out the flames by its presence. It was thought to be very venomous.

9. The commonest mineral on the surface of the earth is quartz. Rock crystal and amethyst are forms of quartz.

10. Sponges are not plants, but a low form of animal life. The sponge as we know it corresponds to the skeleton of the animal.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THE MONDAY ROAST

A "MAN'S woman" is one who has more dimples than opinions, more pep than avoirdupois, and more sweetness than sophistication.

Before marriage, you have to divide all the flattering things a man says, by two—and be careful which half you believe. After marriage, you have to multiply all the flattering things he says by two—and supply the other half.

* * *

A divorce, like an automobile, only becomes an absolute necessity when you discover that you can afford the price of one.

HELEN ROWLAND

Every man is enough of an optimist to look on the bright side of his wife's troubles, the day after the cook leaves; but all his pessimism returns after he has cleared up the dining room and wiped a few sets of dishes.

* * *

The more a man is in love, the more completely he is apt to get over it—just as the more he drinks the night before, the worse headache he has next morning.

* * *

If a girl holds onto her independence and clings to her opinions, she loses a man's love—and if she holds onto his love, she loses her identity.

Take a few yards of chiffon, a few drops of perfume, a few bars of dance music, and a few kisses; mix with a little alcohol and serve under a harvest moon—and almost any man would call it "love."

* * *

If a man insists on having his own way, simply insist on his HAVING it—and watch him pull the other way. Eve never offered Adam the apple; she merely told him that the doctor had ordered him not to eat it.

* * *

Every man begins by telling you that you are "SO different," and then proceeds to try to charm you with the same old "line."

For the Lovelorn

Disgusted

DEAR MISS GALE:

Do they exist, or don't they? Are there any decent boys living at all? Do they all drink and smoke neck and pet? I am invited out many times. Usually they ask me to take a drink. I refuse. They don't think much of the refusal. Then they ask me to smoke. I refuse. They think more on that. Then they ask me to neck. I refuse that also. When I go home and tell them that I enjoyed myself they just give a knowing grin, and say they're glad. But they never invite me out again. So I have to make myself common to be popular. If I do, I shall refuse the price of popularity. I'm beginning to think I'll never be married because I won't find my idea of a decent man. Put before me. I'll never make myself common and put the sign "wall come" out to advertise who comes along. Why can't boys treat the girls they go with as they would like their sister to be treated when she was out? If they would see a boy offer their sister a drink, the boy would surely get a beating and the girls would run escape with much ease.

I repeat "are there no decent boys." I'm making a plea to boys to act more sensibly. But it's not the boys' fault. It's the girls'. A girl who allows a boy to demean her is a fool. It's all right to have fun in sports and have a good time with boys, but watch your step, girls. It's dangerous. Not only for you, but for the girl who goes out with the boy the next time he goes out. He expects the same of her. If you don't care about yourself, think about the future. If a girl's name is dragged in the mud it's covered with dirt. With a boy it's different. I repeat, "are there no decent boys?"

Thank you for your space, Miss Gale. Do you agree with

DISGUSTED?

Of course there are, my dear, lots of them. I have had many letters from boys complaining that girls will not go out with them unless they do the very things that you refuse to do. Be so patient and you will be sure to meet one who fulfils your ideal.

Just a Red Head

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your column for some time. I would like to have some of your good advice. I am a girl 17 years old and have red hair. I agree with you on your views on petting without marriage. But there is a boy going with is below. He almost live months. He owns some valuable property. For some time he has been paying a great deal of attention to them and I think he has lost all interest in me. Please tell me how I can regain his friendship.

JUST A RED HEAD.

Most men have some holes or other, so don't get jealous of these parents. He will like you the more if you are understanding about his interests.

Just Another Reader

DEAR MISS GALE:

Am a constant reader of your column and think your advice is good and I am coming for some myself. I am 15 years old and will be a junior in the fall. My best friend went away and he told me he'd be right and never his letter, but haven't received any from him. Think ing that he had lost my address, would it be right for me to write first? I go with many boys as my mother allows me, so long as I introduce her to them before going out. This I do. There is a certain young man in his home town, whom my mother has found is not very nice. She told me not to go out with this young man. He has two nice cars and comes every night for a date. I always have an excuse to give him. Please tell me what to tell him. Thanking you for your advice, I am,

JUST ANOTHER READER.

I think you are too young to be going out with boys, but if your mother permits it, I have nothing to say. Don't write to this boy on the assumption that he has lost your address. He certainly has an idea where you live and could get your address from other friends if he really has lost it. Refuse to go out with this boy frequently enough and he will stop asking you. Tell him such time that you are busy.

School Romance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHO does not look back with fond memories to schoolday friendships! Many a successful marriage traces the beginning of its romance to school companionship.

Recently I was chatting with a young woman whose marriage has proved singularly happy.

"Buel and I have been pals since the day we started in the first grade together," she said in reply to a question of mine. "Buel sat back of me in the village schoolroom. He was quick at arithmetic, so he obligingly added my sums for me on my slate, which I passed back to him.

"This was velvet for me. But I paid later on when he was changed to another desk and I had to struggle through subtraction alone without any knowledge of addition.

"I could count on Buel to take me to school, parties and football games until my family moved away from town to the Pacific coast.

"By a coincidence, Buel settled in the same Western town a few years later.

"'Buel is practising law in your home town,' a friend informed me when at 21 I went back East to visit relatives. 'Do you ever see him?'

"'Now and then,' I admitted demurely. I did not feel it necessary to add that an engagement ring was at that moment en route from Buel to me.

"We have been married 15 years. Ours cannot be called a case of love at first sight. We can't remember when we first saw each other—probably as babies in our perambulators."

Such a marriage as this, where a girl and boy have similar backgrounds, grow up in an atmosphere of wholesome, school-day comradeship and friendship, marry reasonably early and continue to grow and progress together as husband and wife, can hardly fail. The difficult problems of adjustment are simplified for such a couple and there is mutual understanding of each other, without illusions, before marriage.

Now and then a casual marriage of newly-met sweethearts turns out very well. Sometimes old friends fail to "make a go" as helpmates. But the rule holds: Study your prospective life partner long and well before deciding whether you and he are suited to make each other happy.

In the case of school friendships you are likely to have every chance to "size up" your friend under almost all kinds of conditions, trying and otherwise—at work, at play, as a "good sport." That is, doubtless, the reason so many school romances, beginning as friendships in the teens, lead to successful marriage in the early twenties.

The main thing, if a school friendship is to prosper and last, is to keep it on a high level of self- wholesome comradeship and to avoid slushy, cheap "crushes" and "necking" contests.

"Love me little, love me long" runs the wise old song. Found love on proved friendship. There is time to be sure before taking the great step into matrimony, which can never be retracted without disillusionment, crushed hopes, wounded hearts.

Horoscopes

Tuesday, September 13

AGAIN the stars are menacing in the morning and helpful in the afternoon, according to astrology.

Many adverse aspects are strong until noon, when it is well to undertake business cautiously.

There is a promising sign for merchants and manufacturers as the day advances, and they are to have much business.

Today is better to sell than to buy, but there should be an extraordinary watchfulness later of the market for raw products.

Banking is well directed, and financiers may prepare to meet new problems of foreign import.

Great and marvelous inventions are to make motion pictures even more wonderful than they have been in the past, the seers prophesy.

There is a good sign for association with persons from whom favors are desired. Promoters may find capitalists in listening mood toward sunset.

Astrologers foretell that fire will come into public notice because of some new fashion that may arouse protest from animal lovers.

British women are to make some sort of a political campaign in which American women will help, it is prophesied.

International bonds of unusual friendliness are to be formed through women's organizations, astrologers foretell.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a quiet and rather unimportant year.

Children born on this day probably will have to make their own way in the world, but they are likely to be endowed with happy, cheerful natures.

ELINOR GLYN tells the TRUTH about

Your Subconscious Mind

THE outstanding quality which militates against most people's best efforts for others and for themselves is the sophistry they practice with themselves. (Camouflaging every aspect of any case to bring it in line with their personal wishes and desires. Twisting tiny facts, blinking at insistent warnings, and "putting it over" upon their own conscious minds.

ELINOR GLYN

But there is the subconscious mind, which never sleeps and cannot be deceived, and sooner or later it causes a dull sensation of discomfort, it insidiously suggests that all is not well, until at last the man or woman is obliged to face the naked truth when all pretense has fallen from it. These moments are the true "hell on earth."

A young man may be in love with a young woman. All his friends who have affection for him can see that her character is scheming, her temperament uncertain, and her sense of truth faulty. The young man's subconscious mind has had ample proof of these facts also, but his emotions are highly aroused, and his obstinacy irritated, so he persistently uses camouflage to himself. He employs sophistry and twists all actions and inferences in the way which will fulfil the conception of her character and worthiness he has forced his conscious mind to adopt.

A girl will go against her parents and friends and determinedly wed Jack—telling herself he is all that she wants and none of the things she has been cautioned against, although some instinct warns her that they are true. She has drugged her subconscious mind for the time with sophistry.

Now the wise thing to do every time emotion sways you is deliberately to take a day off, away from the emotional magnet, and then listen quietly to the suggestions of your own subconscious mind, eliminating vanity, bravado and emotions. It will make you sense the truth—and warn you—so that even if you again allow yourself to be submerged, when the inevitable cold awakening does come the shock will not be so terrible. In racing parlance, when emotion or wounded vanity is holding you try to "hedge!"

Ice for Beauty

Complexions will improve rapidly, if the skin is given an invigorating ice treatment daily, Dr. Martha Manning, household refrigeration expert, asserts. The skin first should be gently washed with hot water and a bland soap. After a thorough rinsing in hot water the skin should be rubbed with a lump of ice until a crimson glow results. This procedure stimulates both muscles, skin and circulation. It is a preventive of wrinkles and sallowness, and tends to keep facial contours firm.

Water collecting in the refrigerator drain pan, being melted manufactured ice, may be saved for shampooing hair. It is much softer than ordinary water, and produces better results.

CHAPMAN, BASS SET FOR TITLE FIGHT TONIGHT

Hot Dawgs and a Hot Pennant Race Are in Season

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

Through the Sport Lens by Havey Boyle

HAVEY BOYLE.

WILL Philadelphia at last get a world's champion in boxing tonight? A Philadelphia boy, Benny Bass, a featherweight, meets Red Chapman, of New England, but once a Pittsburgher, in a 10 round bout for the world's championship. Will Bass take it to Philadelphia, which has other Quaker City boys who have won his city

Once, in the Quaker City, they thought Lew Tendler then a lightweight, might some day rise to the top, but he failed twice against Benny Leonard, once in a tenderoni affair which was very close, and again in a decision affair, which was not so close.

At another time after Tendler had grown heavier he took on Mickey Walker, then the welterweight king, but the affair was not anticlimactic because at that time Walker was seared and Tendler was slippery.

ALWAYS a great boxing city a city which supports boxing in a fashionable way and one that has turned out many a good fighter, Philadelphia nevertheless has never been able to claim a championship. Bass is not the only boy to have a chance to give his home town distinction. Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, a light-heavyweight, has on tap a bout with Michael McTigue for the light-heavyweight championship of the world, but this is a sort of synthetic title little honored even in the boxing world.

IF EXPECTATIONS come true the Bass-Chapman bout tonight will draw something between $75,000 and $100,000. Pittsburgh fans will be interested in the outcome not only because Chapman once lived here, but also because Johnny Ray, new matchmaker of Motor Square Garden, will get lines out to bring the winner here for a bout with a worthy opponent later in the season.

IN ANNOUNCING that all his 14[illegible] seats were sold, Tex Richard gave an indication that the Dempsey-Tunney affair already has exceeded any advance sale in the history of the world—for anything. It is not difficult to believe that all these seats have been sold, either, for if you talk to Joe Benton, head ticket man, you will learn that the customers are satisfied with nothing less than the 14[illegible] seats.

There will be thousands go to this fight who care little who wins or loses, but who want to be on hand to see the greatest fight crowd in the history of the world assembled.

Seldom do the fans complain about the action or non action of a heavyweight title affair. They crave action, but if this is missing, then they get comfort out of the knowledge that they were on hand at a historic session of fisticuffs.

THE list of 140 ticketholders will compare with any similar list for grand opera, polo, tennis and first nights of drama, ever prepared. It used to be men might hesitate to attend a boxing show. Now they take their wives and daughters. And these latter will find less bad stuff at the coming boxing show than they might find in some of the current drama, generally rated much higher in a moral way than a boxing exhibition.

ONE thing that Dempsey adherents point to as an argument that Jack may come back to lick Tunney is that these may this time elect to charge upon his foe, in contradistinction to his plan of battle when he won the title, at which time Tunney backed up quite a bit.

Tunney may have sufficient pride as a champion to answer the criticism made of him that he won the title by backing away. Now, if Tunney grows as foolish as did Sharkey in attempting to exchange flat-footed wallops with Dempsey then anything may happen in the coming affair. There is one thing that Dempsey can do better than any in the field—and that is slug. Tunney must outbox the former champion to win, many believe. But will he, as champion, be content to box only?

THIS is quite a tribute to Dempsey—to say that even the heavyweight champion must show respect for the Dempsey punch by artfully keeping at a safe distance. There are few challengers and no comeback boys who inspire the fear that Dempsey's punch inspires.

This, at bottom, is the secret of Dempsey's success in the ring, his popularity, and his pulling power with the crowd. The mob likes the fellow with the wallop—and Dempsey has that if he has nothing else.

IT DOESN'T say so exactly, but a careful analysis of a correspondent's complaint to this department is that in writing we are snobbish, conceited. The correspondent says our phraseology and sometimes a word or so, strange to sporting parlance, is used 'ers, and he objects. He asks for more sporting lingo. He signs himself "Obnoxious," when he really should have signed himself "Constructive Citizen."

Nothing helps a writing fellow more than for someone to take serious objection. It makes him try to do better. The letter had considerable merit. The correspondent himself is a very clear writer. We want to thank him for his help.

St. John's Lyceum defeated the Mesings yesterday for the championship of the Kaufmann Major League, the score being 2 to 4.

Quaker Pug Is Favorite

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—With both "trained to the minute" and confident of victory, Red Chapman of Boston and Benny Bass of this city will meet in a 10 round bout at the municipal stadium tonight for the world feather weight championship.

The 126 pound throne has not had an occupant since Lou Tendler kept abdicated nearly two years ago because he could no longer make the weight limit.

If the training of the contenders may be taken as a criterion the left hook will play a leading part in deciding the contest. Both concentrated on this punch at their training camps, and it has always been one of the most effective blows of each of the fighters.

Bass is a slight favorite in the betting, several large wagers having been laid here at odds of 7 to 5. Chapman, however, has a host of followers who are confident he will emerge victorious.

Comparative records of the two men show little advantage to either. Chapman started his professional career in 1920 and Bass a year later. The Philadelphian has fought 114 contests against 90 for his Boston rival. Bass has 39 knockouts to his credit and Chapman 27. Neither has ever been knocked out himself.

This will be the second meeting of Bass and Chapman, the Philadelphia having won the previous bout, which was held in New York last January, on a foul in the first round.

Three 10-round preliminaries will precede the championship tilt, which is expected to be witnessed by more than 20,000 persons.

Pitt Coach Learns Football Is Like The Old Gray Mare

CAMP HAMILTON, WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 12.—(Special.)—Don't shed any tears for the old gray mare. She isn't what she used to be—but neither is the old game of foot ball.

Jock Sutherland returned yesterday from New York, after attending the annual coaches' meeting to discuss and interpret the new rules. Jock said nothing about what transpired at the gathering, but he exhibited a notebook full of plays he had worked out on the trip back from Gotham.

Talk about new rules. Imagine laundry marks scribbled by a cross-eyed Chinaman wearing mittens, on the last page of a Bunny Browning love letter. When a coach maps out plays, he lets an X represent a player. If one looked at the trick plays in Jock's notebook for five minutes he would have to be carried home to sleep it off.

This may be stretching a point, but the fact remains that Jock is going to take advantage of the new rules to the fullest extent, and incidentally provide Pitt grid fans with something unique in the line of the spectacular.

To illustrate, Gibby Welch, Pitt's sensational halfback, tucks the ball under his elbow and starts around end. The end takes two steps across the scrimmage line and makes a dive at Welch. What does Welch do? He tosses the ball to a teammate two steps ahead of him and the teammate runs 60 yards for a touchdown. That's the theory of it.

The Pitt squad rested up yesterday after stiff scrimmages on Friday and Saturday. Some of the boys polished up their golf on the nine-hole course here, others played volley ball, and most of them spent the afternoon going over Jock's "laundry marks."

There will be scrimmage and plenty of it this week. Coach Sutherland may give the squad a light dose of rough work today, but he is sure to call for at least an hour of scrimmage every day until Saturday, when camp will break up.

Havey Boyle at Ringside For Bass-Chapman Fight

JOHNNIES LEAD IN SERIES

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 12.—The Johnstown Club took the lead in the play-off series to determine the Mid-Atlantic League championship when it defeated Cumberland here yesterday, 6 to 2. Johnstown now leads two to one. A record attendance of 3,717 turned out for the game. The teams resume their series in Johnstown today. The score:

[illegible]

Two-base hits—Morgan, Conti, Antenen, Keen. Three-base hits—Conley, Thompson. Stolen bases—Boyle, Doyle, Double play—Boyle to Blackie Brown 2. Left on bases—Cumberland 7, Johnstown 5. Base on balls off Rose 1, off Bertke 1, Stiles 1, to Matthews 2, by Rose 2. Hit by pitcher—by Rose (Gallopo). Hits off Rose, 5 in 6 innings (none out in seventh); off Bertke, 1 in 3 innings. Losing pitcher—Rose. Umpires—Arnold Robinson, Moore and Pfeffer. Time, 2:00.

FLYWEIGHTS BEGIN TOURNEY TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Frankie Genaro, former flyweight champion, will start a campaign to regain his crown tonight at the opening of the flyweight title elimination series here. His opponent will be Eddie Flank of New York.

The other bouts are Routier Parra, champion of Chile, vs. Alex Burtt, Canadian champion; Elias Rodriguez, Mexican champion, vs. Joey Ross of Hoboken, N. J., and Billy Kelly of Scranton vs. Izzy Schwartz of New York.

The winner of the tournament will be awarded a belt donated by Babe Ruth. If a bout results in a draw, an extra round will be ordered by the judges, thus setting a precedent for professional boxing.

The flyweight title has been made vacant by the abdication of Pidel La Barba.

UNIVERSAL FOE OF JOHNSTOWN

DETROIT, Sept. 12.—It will be Western Pennsylvania against Western Pennsylvania today when the Pittsburgh Universal Cements meet the Shertones of Johnstown, Pa., in the third round of the N. F. B. A. title tournament, now in progress here.

After getting 15 hits to down New Haven in a slugfest in their first-round fight on Saturday, the Universal bats were silenced by the sharpshooters of the Comello Club yesterday, and the 1926 Class A champs from Cincinnati gained a 2-1 decision over the Pittsburgh representatives.

After eight innings yesterday the Universals and Comellos battled upon even terms. Each gathered a single run in the fourth inning, and after that were unable to bunch enough hits to dent each other's defense.

There was one man down in the last half of the ninth when the Comellos opened the offensive drive that led them to victory. Clark, trying too hard on the mound for the Universals, passed Ritter, the Cincinnati catcher. Bauer sacrificed him along, being thrown out at first himself. Then Pfeigel met a fast ball that came over the plate waist high and drove it to deep center field. Ritter raced around from second with the winning run, easily beating the long throw with which Chamberlain tried to cut him off at the plate. The score:

STEFFEN FACES BIG PROBLEM

When Advisory Coach Wally Steffen returned to the city from his home in Chicago this morning and began the third week of preliminary football work, he admitted that the Tartan varsity lineup is still in a decidedly embryonic state. Furthermore, Judge Steffen added, it is not likely that it will assume a more definite makeup for at least a week.

Practice was resumed in the Schenley Oval today with the avowed intention of picking out the best men to occupy the four positions left vacant by stars.

Lloyd Yoder's tackle berth, Wilson Meforth's end, the center post so capably filled by rangy Bill Manly, and the halfback places deserted by Bill Donohoe and Mike Gaschom.

It is the loss of these brilliant veterans, all of whom played major roles in Carnegie's triumphs over Pitt, West Virginia and Notre Dame last season, that is worrying the coaches most. They realize that from a mechanical standpoint they have acceptable candidates to peg the gaps, but they also know that the newcomers cannot be counted on for the same steadiness under fire as their more seasoned predecessors.

Scrimmage will likely be the order of the day this afternoon and throughout the week. Not in years has a Pitt squad been given such a severe dose of milling as this one, but coaches and players alike say it is their only salvation.

WICHITA FALLS WINS TEXAS LEAGUE PENNANT

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Maintaining the lead from the first game of the season, the Wichita Falls club of the Texas League finished yesterday 11 games ahead of Waco to face the leaders of the Southern Association in the Dixie series annual baseball classic of the Southwest.

Houston, Fort Worth, Dallas, Shreveport, San Antonio and Beaumont finished in the order named.

GERMANS OBTAIN TIE IN SOCCER OPENER

By TOM BIRKS.

PLAYING the style of soccer that looks good in mid-season, the German Sport Club opened its new soccer plant out on the Perry highway yesterday, with the Pittsburgh Internationals furnishing the opposition, and 90 minutes of locks never found the teams retiring with the game deadlocked, each scoring three times, and divided the honor points in the Pittsburgh American Soccer League.

The new field is in the course of construction, but will be good when finished. An ideal day brought out a large crowd, and when Borowsky kicked off the sun was shining, but a stiff wind blowing across the ground.

The Germans were kicking downhill and naturally forced the play. Hurst was dangerous and just missed scoring a couple of times. Then Pittsburgh pressed and Matchaf scored when Young was fouled in the penalty area.

The Sport Club soon equalized matters, Haist scoring with a shot that Marshall never saw.

Turning around play was fast, and then the Germans scored through Schleder. Pittsburgh fought back and M'Parlane scored with a shot that the goalie misjudged. Then keeping up the pressure, Kirshmann gave the Internationals the lead. But just before the finish Haist again scored with a brilliant effort. The score:

[illegible]

Referee—Ross. Linesmen—Ross 2, Schuyler, N. Y. Goals—M'Parlane and Kirshmann. Score at half time 1-1. Time of halves—45 minutes. Referee—Ross.

HELEN LAWSON WINS CALIFORNA GOLF TITLE

By Universal Service.

MONTE, Cal., Sept. 12.—Helen Lawson, Los Angeles girl, is today queen of California golfdom following her decisive defeat of Mrs. Brent Potter, San Francisco star, in the state tournament at Del Monte.

The Los Angeles miss rallied on the home stretch yesterday after she had been two down at the end of the first nine holes to win two up on the eighteenth and snatch victory from almost certain defeat.

NOTES of the BOXERS

BENNY BASS is a 7-5 favorite for his 10-round bout with Red Chapman for the world's featherweight title in the Sesqui-Centennial arena, Philadelphia, tonight.

The biggest show of the week, aside from the titular match tonight is that at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Wednesday night featuring Monte Munn and George Godfrey in the main bout. Munn faces his first serious test in opposing the big Negro, who recently knocked out Jim Maloney in the first round.

Tommy White, the Mexican welterweight champion, meets Andy Jarvoll in the 10-round windup at the Queensboro Club, New York, tomorrow night.

Joe Scali and Joe Glick will figure in the leading bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, Thursday night. The Billy Grime-Honey Bee Pittsburgh match will be the semi-final.

Jim McGirr has closed all the bouts on his card for Thursday night at the Palisades roller rink, Weehawken, with the exception of the second number, in which Sammy Simmons, James Mason's light heavyweight, Harry Taylor and Young Ryan, lightweights, will furnish the main bout and Ray Shafer and Lin Jordan will figure in the other. The opener of six rounds will be between George Peck and Jack Isaacs.

Andy Tomasky, Wilmerding amateur welterweight, who recently returned from a stay in Italy, [illegible] a Tunney man in the impending battle between Tunney and Dempsey. Andy made a trip to Dempsey's camp while in the Middle West and was not impressed with what Dempsey showed him. He says Jack still is a hard puncher, but misses repeatedly and is a cinch for a left-handed puncher. He thinks Tunney will jab Jack's head off with that left and win in a romp.

Tilden Won't Turn Pro, Will Be Member of '28 Cup Team, He Says

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—If the United States sends a team abroad next year in an attempt to regain the Davis Cup from the French, Big Bill Tilden will be very glad to be a member, he said today before starting play in the national singles championship.

Instead of turning professional as he had contemplated if defense of the Davis Cup had been successful, Tilden declared he would be entirely at the service of the United States Lawn Tennis Association in 1928.

With such younger stars as George Lott and John Doeg, Tilden will be ready for the long trail of qualifying play which must be traversed next year before the United States can challenge the reigning Frenchmen for the cup.

Police, Firemen Rap Garland; Urge Ford

City police and firemen, at the mass meetings in the Harris Theater yesterday, moved to support John J. Ford, former police inspector, for Council. Ford also was indorsed at a meeting of the Veterans' Pension Association, composed of former police and firemen, in the assignment room of Common Pleas Court yesterday. Former Capt. of Detectives Louis H. Leff presided.

The need of a representative in Council to secure the wage increase for which the police and firemen have been fighting several years was stressed by speakers at all meetings, a number of them referring to "one councilman" who always voted "no" on such demands.

"Who is that councilman?" demanded a fireman at the night meeting in the Harris.

"Robert Garland," replied John Heinz, who presided.

Before the afternoon meeting the boosters' committee of the Fraternal Order of Police and the City Firemen's Protective Association indorsed Ford, and John Murphy for recorder of deeds. Speakers at the meeting included Fred W. Baer, of the International Fire Fighters' Association, and Joseph O'Reilly, of the New York Police and Firemen's Association.

The first political meeting in the new Thirtieth Ward, formerly Knoxville, will be held tonight in American Legion Hall, Georgia avenue and Rochelle street. John F. Donley will preside. The meeting will be in the interests of the Republican organization ticket.

WOODSIDE SPEAKS

If the Controller's office functions properly, improper or illegal payments could not be made because "the county controller must countersign every warrant before it is honored by the treasurer," Robert G. Woodside, organization candidate for the post, said at the noon meeting in the Hotel Henry headquarters today.

"The original bills and invoices for all expenditures must be on file in the Controller's office," he said. "His books must reflect the exact financial status of the county. Consequently there could be no question of a surcharge because of proper scrutiny at the right time would prevent any improper payment in the first instance."

Councilman John S. Herron presided at the meeting, the first of six scheduled for today. Tonight there will be organization meetings in the Osceola school, Eighth ward; Polish Lyceum Hall, Sixteenth ward; American Legion Hall, Thirtieth ward; Munhall High School and Bethlehem Baptist Church, McKeesport.

ADDRESSES WOMEN

Urging a revision of the present law providing penalties for crimes and suggesting that judges be given power to sentence habitual criminals and defectives "for life if necessary to protect society," Judge James H. Gray addressed a meeting of the League of Women Voters in the Morrowfield apartments today.

CONDEMNS McGOVERN

The only issue raised by the opposition to the Republican organization is "the personal disappointment of aspirants who failed to secure indorsements," Councilman Harry A. Little said in a radio address over WJAS today. Controller C. C. McGovern, he said, having failed to remove his opposition by attempting to raise a legal technicality, will face the people on election day "with a record of having held up public improvements of vital interest to the people in an eleventh-hour political gesture."

Garland Gives Lie To 'Anti-Raise' Story

The statement that he always has voted "no" on raises for police and firemen is "an unvarnished lie," Councilman Robert Garland said in a statement today, adding that to attempt to tell the people that any one member of Council can prevent anything is asinine. Mr. Garland declared that John Heinz, who presided at the police meeting, had demanded his promise to raise wages several weeks ago and had been informed that increase would be considered at the budget-making session and that a councilman, taking his oath of office, must say that no pre-election promises were made to bring about his election.

"I understand that this is being used simply as a political football," said Garland. "Dust cannot be thrown successfully into the eyes of the public. No new man, if elected, could presume to act as director of council as at present constituted."

MRS. ZANE GREY SENDS CHECK TO LEGION POST

MARTINS FERRY, O., Sept. 12.—(Special.)—A check for $100 has been received here from Mrs. Zane Grey, wife of the author, as a donation to the Walnut Grove Cemetery fund of the local American Legion Post. Mr. Grey is a descendant of the Zane family, pioneers of the Wheeling district. Betty Zane, a member of the family and heroine of the battle with the Indians at Fort Henry on the present site of the City of Wheeling, is buried at Walnut Grove.

SAVE HOME OF AUTHOR OF 'HOME, SWEET HOME'

EASTHAMPTON, N. The resolution was offered by Judge Samuel Seabury, of New York City, a summer resident of Easthampton.

ROTARY HEARS OF FINE WORK DONE

Famous Quadruplets at Meeting.

There was no set Rotary programme yesterday, a sort of impromptu free-for-all in which members brought out many good things.

George P. Weldon reported a telegram sent to the Sacramento Rotary Club commending the State Fair.

W. A. Freemire reported his attendance at the Fontana Rotary Club, where he enjoyed a very peppy programme.

A happy feature of the meeting was the attendance as honored guests of Mr and Mrs. F. M. Keyes and their quadruplet daughters, of Hollis, Okla., who are visiting the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Shank.

BOOK REVIEW.
And What a Book! Wotta Book! "Maurine"—The Sweetest Story Ever Told.

Years after the wedding, Maurine confessed that she never heard the organ's mighty roar or sniffed the scent of heliotrope without thinking of the awful hour she spent as bridesmaid when Vivian Dangerfield married Helen Trever, or Trevor. Every time she glimpsed a stained-glass window Maurine felt a dizzy whirling of the brain and would throw a fit. All the ghastly feeling of that night would return—the night her "sick heart relinquished love and hope and her lover became the husband of her friend."

The author expresses the thought prettily thus:

"The pain we feel so keenly may depart,
And e'en its memory cease to haunt the heart;
But some slight thing, a perfume, or a sound,
Will probe the closed recesses of the wound,
And for a moment bring the old-time smart."

How true! How true! Who of us who has ever eaten a wrinkled frankfurter, for instance, will deny that years afterward, if we chance to nibble a senile frankfurter, does not, for the moment, recall the hour of pain? Life is like that.

BUGS BAER Says

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

TEX RICKARD is busy explaining that a ringside seat doesn't have to be at the ringside any more than an ocean dip has to be in the gulf stream.

Tex admits that the forty-dollar perches are on the aisle.

But he has reached that stage where he thinks the aisle is the Lincoln highway.

A seat on Tex's sock exchange may be worth forty bills provided that you are close enough to chin yourself on the ropes.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

But a thirty-dollar chair is so far away that its occupant is liable to holler that the referee is hitting low.

When you kick forth twenty buttons you are inside the park.

It looks like Tex should sell souvenir postcards so the fans can prove they were there.

The ten plunker boards are also ringside. You can tell when the fight has started by the Gong.

These seats are about eight hundred full feet from the fight. That's four city blocks.

The non-resident fight fans in the ten smacker zone will get a bird's-eye view of the nest.

They will think that the referee and the fighters is a scientist struggling with two microbes.

And the five dollar seats. Well, we're sorry we mentioned them.

What Tex should do is to give each fighter a signal corp flag and let them wig-wag the fight to the outlying districts.

ON "THE PICTURE IN THE HEART."

In every woman's HEART hangs a PORTRAIT,
A picture, colored by her EMOTIONS,
Of the ONE who, in all the WORLD,
She holds most DEAR.
In SOME hearts a LOVER is enframed;
In others, it is a BABY'S FACE that holds this Place of HONOR. Sometimes it is a mother's,
And—many times it is the WOMAN HERSELF.

The HEART is a MIRROR that reflects our Longings, JOYS and griefs. Some women must be A great INSPIRATION to themselves, for they Work so hard to PROMOTE their own HAPPINESS.
OTHERS seek always an IDEAL outside
Themselves. These TAKE greater RISKS. It is Better to HANG on to an idealized PICTURE
Of oneself and—LIVE up to it.

Citizens' Training Camps' Seventh Useful Season

The government camps for the military and civil training of citizens have closed their 1927 season and have left valuable lessons.

The records show a total attendance in the 52 encampments in 33 states of 39,676 young men—almost four times the number trained in the first camps seven years ago.

That is an encouraging ratio of growth when we consider how much initial misunderstanding of the purposes of the experiment had to be overcome.

Even more encouraging is the fact that this year the applications outnumbered the accommodations by almost one-half.

This shows that the misunderstanding is pretty well dispersed and that the experimental period is over.

We know of no investment by our government which yields a better return in improved manhood or in national security than this yet small outlay upon these training camps.

It upbuilds bodies, inculates a sense of civic responsibility, develops discipline and is a tonic to character, quite aside from its large value as a means of pleasant recreation.

The next Congress will have before it many problems in the conservation of national resources calling properly for the expenditure of great sums from the public treasury. No conservation is more important than that of the human resources of the nation. Here it can be advanced at a relatively slight expense, with the benefits established beyond question.

It would be wise policy not only to provide generously for all young men who would train to be better prepared as citizens but also for the young women as well.

Woman Grand Jury Foreman New Evidence of Progress

A woman is foreman of the September grand jury. A man who had been chosen was excused from further service for business reasons, and Presiding Judge James R. Macfarlane of Criminal Court named Mrs. Margaret Davis of Coraopolis in his stead.

Thus does Mrs. Davis become a "WOMAN WHO." There has been a notable array of "women who," from Eve, the woman who was first to eat an apple, to Gertrude Ederle, the woman who was first to swim the English channel, and Mildred Doran, the heroic woman who was first of her sex to become a martyr to the cause of aviation.

There have been many "women who" and there will be many more. The appointment of Mrs. Davis to serve as the first woman foreman of a grand jury in Allegheny county, and, so far as court officials can recall, the state, as well, indicates something more than the confidence of the court that she will be able to perform the duties assigned to her. It indicates PROGRESS made in man's mental attitude toward women.

We HAD to accept the fact of women voters and some of us did it grudgingly. Many die-hards still doubt the wisdom of giving the franchise to our mothers, wives and daughters, but no one can deny their RIGHT to have it. But no one was compelled to make a woman a grand jury foreman. That was a PIONEER move that reflects credit on our courts and on our county.

Reopening the Discussion On Rearing of Children

Mayor Walker of New York, in a breezy speech while in Berlin, is said to have added to the puzzlement of his hosts by a reference to how children should be reared.

The conventional German way of doing this important work relies strongly on discipline and routine. The visitor is reported to have said:

"American children bring up themselves. The reason America has so many capable men is that it is rich in children who have not been brought up by others."

Probably no two people in any part of the earth have ever agreed on all the details of how a child should be reared. It is doubtful that any two children would respond alike to any method. Its eternal variableness is what gives chief charm to human nature, and especially to the nature of children.

But in general it is true that American custom tends to widen the area of youthful freedom, giving liberal play to differences in personality.

Years ago we, too, followed the maxim: "Spare the rod and spoil the child." There were giants in those days, and some today think sterner discipline and more rigid guidance would reproduce them.

It is a debate that, now reopened by a chance remark, will never end. This, though, may be said for the laxer philosophy: It works pretty well in homes where parents set their children good examples in wholesome conduct. Example is ever more potent than precept.

American children, however, do not bring up themselves. They are brought up by all of us. We make the atmosphere in which they live and grow. If we poison it by vicious books, vicious plays, vicious social standards and customs, we need not load all the blame on them or on their parents when they do not turn out to please us.

Two horses pull the race along—heredity and environment. It is a good idea to keep both well fed and well shod.

Two Ways to Handle Money

Chauncey Depew's $100, left in a savings account, became $1,100 in 66 years. Had it been invested at the right time with Henry Ford, it would have become a million or more.

Since nobody knows the right time to adventure with money, it is wise to do so only when you are prepared, if necessary, to stand a loss.

That rule will not prevent speculation, which is necessary for progress, but will soften considerably its rougher edges.

The Rendezvous

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Sea and Land

THE fact that man is restlessly curious about such a thing as the precise shape of the earth and ready to go to enormous trouble to find it out, furnishes one of his best titles to universal respect. In this he is no longer a mere animal, living by bread alone.

Some of the continents along the seashore are sinking or rising a few inches in a century. The most elaborate investigations must be continued through years to detect the mere existence of such change. But they loom so plain to the mental eye of the geodicist, geologist or geographer, that he thrills at their discovery like a boy hooking his first fish. Instantly his imagination spins through the eons of geology and he sees the rocky surface of the planet fluctuating like a tempestuous ocean. The mind throws off the shackles of time and space in all such exercises of its powers and no physical pleasure can equal the delight of that emancipation.

But, let us look a little closer at this matter of the sinking and rising of continents as if the earth were respiring. The common basis of measurement is the mean sea-level. If the sea persistently rises along a coast, the adjoining continent is assumed to be sinking. But there are local causes that may invalidate this conclusion. Thus Professor Douglas Johnson points out that the mean sea-level surface itself is subject to fluctuation, instead of being everywhere fixed. Not only does the attraction of great land masses raise the sea-level along the contiguous shore, but Professor Johnson is convinced that "the mean sea-level surface bordering an irregular shore is itself an irregularly warped surface, and that its elevation changes appreciably with changes in the form of the shore line."

This has an important bearing on the question whether a particular shore line is subsiding or increasing in elevation. And the correct settlement of that question may have very important practical consequences. Just imagine what would be the results of an eventual change of sea-level to the amount of several feet, up or down, in the neighborhood of New York Bay! We know that in the past, not geologically remote, there has been a great sinking of the shore, and the lower reach of the Hudson River valley has been drowned by the rising sea-level. But what will be the next development? It will, at any rate, take place slowly, so that people with short-range minds need not be disturbed about it.

An example of the effects cited by Professor Johnson, on which the theory of a fluctuating mean sea-level is based, occurs at the embayment of Kennebecasis Lake into which the St. John River flows in New Brunswick, and which connects with the sea through a very narrow tidal channel, in which is situated the famous "Reversible Falls." The mean level in the embayment is two feet higher than the mean level outside. This creates a fictitious indication of subsidence of the land around the embayment. In other situations embayed shore waters may have a lowered mean level, falsely suggesting an elevation of the coast. A beauty of all this is its proof of the circumspect character of scientific curiosity.

Speed vs. Accuracy

THE "good old days" are of the past.

The way you did things 10, 20 or 30 years ago may have produced commendable results in their time.

But the methods you used were slower and resulted in a kind of production which is not demanded today.

Speed is a requisite of the present; accuracy to a certain point, but not to a degree that will preclude rapid accomplishment.

Perhaps you regret that in the craftsmanship of these days the finer detail is lacking.

You may feel that the requests of the younger generation boss are so insistent for large production that there cannot be the same finish to the completed article.

You may think his desires lack thoroughness but it is up to you to give your boss what he wants.

Bear in mind that this is the greatest age in history.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Here and There

IF YOU lend a bit of brightness as some passing joy you share, happy hearts will hold you closely in their memories, here and there. If you weave a thread of sunshine in the fabric of their days, though the effort cost but little, you will reap men's love and praise; you will glean a touch of gladness so the day will be more fair, you will find new smiles to greet you in your travels, here and there. All the gladness and the mem'ries, all the smiling looks you meet will be much; but you will garner other recompense more sweet. Better than the looks of loving, that like sunshine bless the air, is the knowledge you have helped men on their journey, here and there.

THAT MINE'S most active
WHEN I sit down
* * *
TO WRITE out checks
WITH WHICH to pay
MY MONTHLY bills,
* * *
AND CHOOSE the bills
THAT BEAR no lines
IN PRINTERS' ink
THAT THEY must be paid
ON A certain day.
AND PARTICULARLY
I LAY aside
* * *
THE ONE that comes
WITH THE bright red line
THAT SEEMS to always
THREATEN ME
OF DIRE things
IF I don't sit down
* * *
WHEN THE mailman comes
AND WRITE a check
AND HURRY over
TO THE letter box.
WHEN I write that check,
* * *
AS I always do,
MONTH AFTER month,
* * *
I TAKE my pen
* * *
AND RUN it right through
THE BRIGHT red line.
AND IT'S all very foolish.
BUT WHEN that store
* * *
IS SO glad to see me,
* * *
AND SHAKES my hand
WHEN I go in,
* * *
AND SEEMS so pleased
WITH MY purchases,
* * *
IT OCCURS to me
THEY MIGHT go further
IN THEIR courtesy
BY ELIMINATING
THE DISCORDANT note
OF THE threatening line
IN BRIGHT red ink
ON THEIR printed bill.
AND BESIDES all that,
THEY NEVER can tell
THAT AS I grow older
AND CRABBIER,
THAT MAYBE some month
I'LL GET so mad
I'LL NEVER go back
* * *
TO THEIR store any more.
* * *
I THANK you.

New York Day by Day

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Chicago in many ways seems the most robust of all American cities. Despite a building and boulevard splendor, it retains a primitive ruggedness. One almost hears the crack of the long oxen whip. There is beauty in its whistling winds, clinging soot and gusto.

Chicago has a serene indifference for the rest of the world, a mocking self-sufficiency. Entering it by train is not particularly pleasant to the eye. There are rows upon rows of grimy and scabrous tumble down "Chicago flats." Wet wash hangs on every back yard line and there is an endless vista of despairing kitchens.

And coming out of railroad terminals the harsh roar is emphasized by doleful police whistles. But once the hard casing is cracked, Chicago is revealed as a sort of imprisoned panorama of striking achievements. Only the Champs Elysee compares with the lake-fronted magnificence of Michigan avenue.

There are topless towers rivalling those of Manhattan and parks better kept. The city has flung out boulevards ribbon-like into the lake, and residential places are as fine as any in the land. The city is divided into the North and South Side with the roaring Loop as its heart. The Loop is Chicago's Times Square.

Negroes in Chicago have even a finer residential area than in Harlem. A street of old homes with a mall running down its center has been taken over by them. The colored population is composed largely of prosperous Pullman porters and their families.

Its Chinatown is a triangular square not as colorful as New York's but more in the open. The Italian quarter is in mean shabby streets—wretched hovels that will doubtless soon receive the needed blast of dynamite. The slums of Chicago are depressing.

In the summer Chicago moves out to its beach. The lake side hotels are giant structures with verandahs filled with glossy young men in flannels and languorous ladies in summery frocks. On main streets you see smartly dressed women as well as cattle men in boots and wide hats and to the Easterner it seems the place where the West might really begin.

Chicago had the original "Gold Coast," an appellation now given to only Park avenue. It was the district of early Chicago's illustrous wealth—the Armours, the Swifts, the Fields and so on. Great palaces were built there but a change came and the district scattered with the old mansions now in crumbling decay. One with stained windows and a porte cochere is now a bagnio and cellars once housing choicest of vintages now herald coal and kindling shops. Trade—such as music studios, health schools and realtors offices—has entirely changed old Prairie avenue. It seems crouched like a thing at bay trying desperately to hold the grandeur of another day.

A New Yorker is bound to notice the Chicago taxi driver. He is, as a rule, a polite country boy from Kansas, Missouri and Indiana farms with a round hair cut — talkative and proud to show a stranger the city. You have a feeling tipping him is a debasing gesture after he proves so companionable.

The stay in Chicago was between trains on Sunday. A great crowd was moving toward the Field Museum. Every park bench seemed filled and families were picnicking on the grass. The beach was alive with bathers. I told the driver to drive out to Colisimo's—once the center of Chicago's most famous gang war. There were only two patrons. Of course it was Sunday and off hours, yet somehow was an impression that much of Chicago's wickedness lives chiefly in the headlines.

A colorful slice of Chicago is around the labor agencies in the shadows of railroad terminals. Here unskilled laborers are sifted and shipped to Western wheat fields, new railroad sections, Montana mines and California fruit farms. They sit along the street curbs watching for fresh bulletins of new opportunities. Many are in pathetic need of work and others are chronic vagabonds seeking a "free ride" to new pastures.

Chicago has the loudest yelping newsies, the slickest looking hotel clerks and the best depot restaurants in America.

And of course, lots of other things you can't see between trains.

Independence

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Independence is a very sweet word to Americans.

Few people, however, realize how intimately associated and consequently connected are dependence and poverty. I have seen a good deal of distress in my time and met many pitiable cases. Nine-tenths of them were due to lack of money.

For some reason, either their fault or somebody else's, they had no means and that meant for them humiliation and grief.

Few people are brave enough or capable enough to live their lives without means of some sort. It takes a much greater man constantly to live a life of poverty than to live a life of riches. His inner resources must be immense.

B. C. Forbes recently gave some practical, common sense hints to financial independence. He says that instead of poverty being no disgrace often it is a disgrace, and with a little intelligence could have been forestalled.

Without money we have, as a rule, no means of culture or education. We are unable to help others who need it and we are exposed to an old age where we will be dependent upon others. Besides this, there is the constant humiliation of asking aid from other people.

Some of the common sense advice that Mr. Forbes gives lies along the following lines. Of course, the fundamental thing is to spend less than you make. I think it was Dickens who said, for instance, that if you make 20 shillings and spend 19 that means success, but if you make 20 shillings and spend 21 that means failure.

Another thing is that this surplus must be saved. You can put it down as an almost invariable rule that a man can live on nine-tenths of what he does live on. By saving the extra tenth he lays the foundation of financial independence.

Workmen are nowadays often given the opportunity to buy stock in companies they work for at reduced rates. They can also get bonds, shares and perhaps a little piece of real estate with their extra money.

Some of the surplus each year should be put into buying a home. A home is a great stabilizer and a great incentive towards saving.

One of the first things also a workman should do is to take out adequate life insurance.

Another good piece of advice is, don't buy anything until you have got the money. Do without until you have saved up enough to purchase it.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

AFTER his vacation of two months in the West, Edison returned to his laboratory at Menlo Park and plunged into work on new experiments. One day a neighboring farmer visited him to find out if Edison knew a way to kill the potato bugs that were destroying his vines.

ALWAYS interested in any problem put up to him, the "wizard" promptly sent some of his men out to the infested farm. They brought back two quarts of bugs. Edison tried every chemical in the laboratory and finally discovered that bisulphide of carbon killed them in jig time.

HE WAS satisfied that he had solved the problem of the potato bug scourge, and, gratified at the thought that he was rendering a service, he went out to the farm with a "drum" of the poison and, while the farmer anxiously watched, sprayed the vines until every bug dropped dead.

BY MORNING Edison had forgotten the incident of the potato bugs. Suddenly the laboratory door burst open and in rushed the farmer to tell him that the poison had killed the vines, too. Edison had to pay $300 "for not experimenting properly." (Continued Tomorrow.)
